FIFTEEN CENTS

PISD Insurance Debated

BY TERRI ANDERSON

An audience of 50 persons—most of them teachers and other school district employees—showed up at a packed School Board meeting last night to hear a decision on PISD-provided health care insurance.

Jack Cockrill, assistant superintendent for personnel, explained the details of two insurance plans selected from a field of six bids. Last week, a faculty council made up of representatives from all the district's schools split on whether to recommend plans by Blue Cross-Blue Shield or the Texas Association of School Boards.

In this year's fiscal budget, School Trustees approved $338,000 to pay for health care insurance for the PISD's approximately 1,450 full-time employees.

Although the faculty council remained split after more than an hour and a half of discussion before the board, trustees voted 4-2 on a motion by Rick Melcer to accept the TASB plan. Trustees Mary Beth Applewhite and Sue Willard Olivier voted against the motion.

"They are both excellent plans and are better than the coverage that is presently in effect," Cockrill said during his presentation. "In my opinion, the board cannot go wrong with either plan."

Only four of the 22-member faculty council expressed preferences with Sharon Russell of Wilson Middle School making a strong push for the TASB plan.

Tom New of Plano Senior High, however, reported that 80 percent of the PSHS faculty members who responded to his inquiries were in favor of Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

The other two council members who addressed the board said that their policies were either split on the two policies or did not have a preference either way.

Of primary concern to the TASB plan backers was that the Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan was considerably more expensive when it came to adding children only or a spouse only to the school employee's policy.

Where both plans were almost identical in cost for employee coverage picked up by the district (the TASB plan was 8 cents per person less expensive), it would cost $11 more to add a spouse to the policy under BC-BS than it would have under TASB.

To add children only to the school staff member's policy, it would have cost more than $17 more under the BC-BS plan than the TASB.

Benefits also differed slightly with TASB offering dental coverage with a $400 deductible and BC-BS offering no dental policy. Blue Cross, however, would have paid 100 percent of hospital and outpatient charges following an $80 deductible with TASB paying just 80 percent of the costs following a deductible equal to the cost of one day's semi-private room care.

Maximum lifetime benefits per person under the two policies differed considerably with BC-BS allowing $1 million and TASB allowing $250,000. Asst. superintendent Cockrill explained that those numbers were almost impossible to reach and that to his knowledge, no employee's health care expenses had ever exceeded about $10,000 in the past.

A plus for the TASB plan, according to many faculty council members, was special expense coverage which would pay $50 per day to the policyholder after 30 days in the hospital and $25 per day while confined at home.

The BC-BS plan would have paid $200 per week while the policyholder was in the hospital and nothing while at home.

Representatives from both insurance companies were on hand to answer questions but did not make presentations to the School Board.

Under the adopted TASB health care plan, the school district will pay approximately $398,500 to cover some 1,450 full-time employees. The extra $60,500 which was not budgeted for insurance will be made up due to the fact that the new policy will not take effect until Oct. 1 and the budget year began on Sept. 1. More money for insurance will be budgeted next year.

In other action at the Tuesday evening meeting, trustees approved a request from the Department of Public Welfare to occupy space at Douglass School and also okayed a European trip for high school and senior high school students.

Reports were given on the district's secondary English program by English coordinator Bettye Mischen and on a recent meeting of the North Texas Area Association of School Boards.

Board members reviewed guidelines for cash awards to be presented in May in recognition of excellence in teaching. The awards will be made through a $50,000 grant from the Ross Perot Foundation.

Dr. H. Wayne Hendrick, superintendent of schools, announced that the current enrollment in the district as of Monday was 18,871—some 1,620 students more than the district had at the end of the last school year.

Also, Wanda Kirkpatrick, formerly a teacher at Weatherford Elementary School, was named coordinator of the gifted and talented student program in the PISD.

The School Board's next regular meeting will be Oct. 4 with a special joint meeting with the City of Richardson planned for Oct. 26.

With School Sites

District Plans Ahead

(Editor's Note: On Oct. 1, the Plano Independent School District will ask voters to approve the sale of $38.5 million in bonds. The money, if okayed, will be used to build eight new schools, purchase 11 school sites, and finance renovations and additions to existing buildings.)

The following is the fifth in a series of articles dealing with the October bond issue and the district's previous bond funds. The articles will appear periodically during September.)

Within the next five years, the Plano Independent School District must purchase 11 new school sites to prepare for the continued population growth of the 112-square mile district.

These new sites will be purchased with funds from the upcoming Oct. 1 bond election should PISD voters decide to approve it.

Picking sites for schools is a long and intricate process, according to land planner Herschel Lindley of Schrickel, Rollins and Associates, civil engineers for the school district. But with the cooperation of landowners, PISD officials and the City of Plano, the process usually goes smoothly.

Lindley explained that once a landowner begins to develop his property, he submits a land study to the city and then, to the school district. As soon as contact with the PISD is made, Schrickel, Rollins and Associates begins its detailed research.

"We take the information the landowner has given us and relate it to the master plan for school sites developed by the school district," said Lindley. "If we assume there is a need for a school, we take his information and determine the scholastic generation coming out of his development so we can determine how many elementaries, how many middle schools, etc., we need to build."

Using time-tested statistics, the land planners count on an average of 1.22 "scholastics," or students, per home in the newly-planned development. These figures are used to determine the number and sizes of needed schools.

"Then we take the school and locate it within the developed property so it's as close to the center of the service zone as possible," Lindley added. "We relate the specific location of the school site to the traffic pattern so circulation is adequate and doesn't create problems within the neighborhood. We want to make it run as smoothly as possible."

The land use, circulation (traffic) system and number of single family dwellings within a development are all taken into account together to decide where to place new schools.

To help the planners and the school district, a master plan showing the prospective location of schools and parks in the PISD was made and updated in January of this year.

Lindley explained that the parks and schools are coordinated to allow an "overlap—" resulting in a substantial savings of tax dollars to PISD residents.

Usually, the land planner noted, an elementary school must be allotted 10 acres of land in order to include a playground and neighborhood park. But the PISD allows for only 7.5 acres for its elementary sites.

Ten acres is also usually needed for a neighborhood park, but the City of Plano allots 7.5 acres.

Through city-school cooperation, these sites are coordinated so a 15-acre school and park area is created.

"The citizens of Plano are saving 25 percent of land acquisition costs through this unique arrangement," commented Lindley. "This saves the taxpayers a tremendous amount of money in the long haul and provides them with a higher quality service."

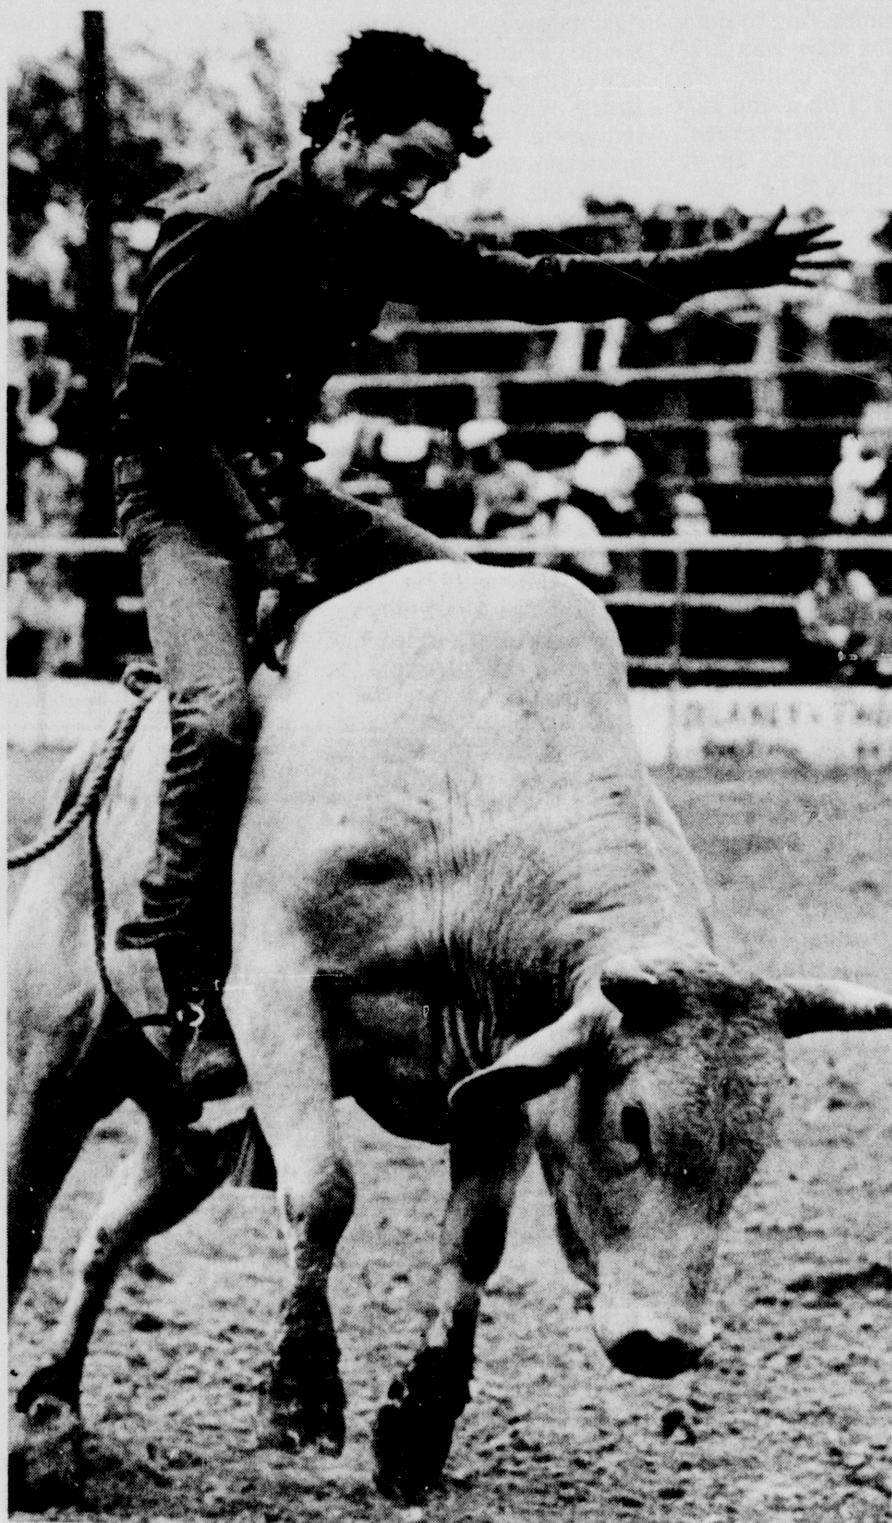

This friendly political atmosphere between the city and the school district "emulates out" to the private sector of the community, Lindley suggested, and helps make landowners and developers cooperative too.

"There's always give and take on both sides, between the landowners and the school district," the planner said. "They know these schools have to be built and we work with them so the school serves the function of the school district and the developer."

Lindley praised the record of PISD School Boards for assuring a definite need for a school before it is built. He said that it is an asset to the taxpayers not to have schools that are only half-filled for many years.

"The population growth within the school district is at a rapid rate. There's an extra-large amount of property presently before the Planning and Zoning Commissions and City Councils (of cities within the PISD)," Lindley concluded. "What the upcoming bond issue is doing is being responsive to the obvious growth that is occurring now and to the anticipated growth of the future." —

A Bunch of Bull

Plano Rodeo Club rider Curt Young had his hands full with a particularly grouchy Brahma bull in last weekend's rodeo. High school cowboys and cowgirls from all over the North Texas area participated in the Plano-sponsored event held at the John Coomer Memorial Arena in Wylie. Deficit Still Exists In Social Security WASHINGTON (UPI) — Everyone agreed that if the Social Security System is to be kept sound, someone must pay.

The question before the House Ways and Means subcommittee Tuesday was: Who?

In the past, Social Security has been financed by payroll taxes equally borne by employers and employees.

But for the past five years, the system has been paying out more than it takes in. Projections are that the program's disability trust fund may be exhausted by 1979; the retirement fund, sometime between 1983 and 1985.

President Carter, in line with his campaign promise not to raise taxes for the working people, has called for payroll tax increases beginning in 1979, which would fall mainly on employers.

Last week the Senate Finance Committee came up with a plan putting the burden even more heavily on employers. Some of its members noted there are a lot more employees among the voting public than there are employers.

In the House panel, Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., observed: "There is no free lunch. If we're going to make the system sound we're going to be biting some people." He said an initial increased burden on employers, later returning to an equal burden, would produce mathematically the best results.

Liquor Vote Produces Big Turnout

Election judge Stanley Brimberry has reported that 42 absentee votes have been cast as of Wednesday morning in Plano's local option election.

The unusually high turnout after only two full days of balloting signifies an expected large number of voters at the polls on election day, Oct. 8.

Citizens of Plano will decide whether to permit the legal sale of beer and wine for off-premise consumption only.

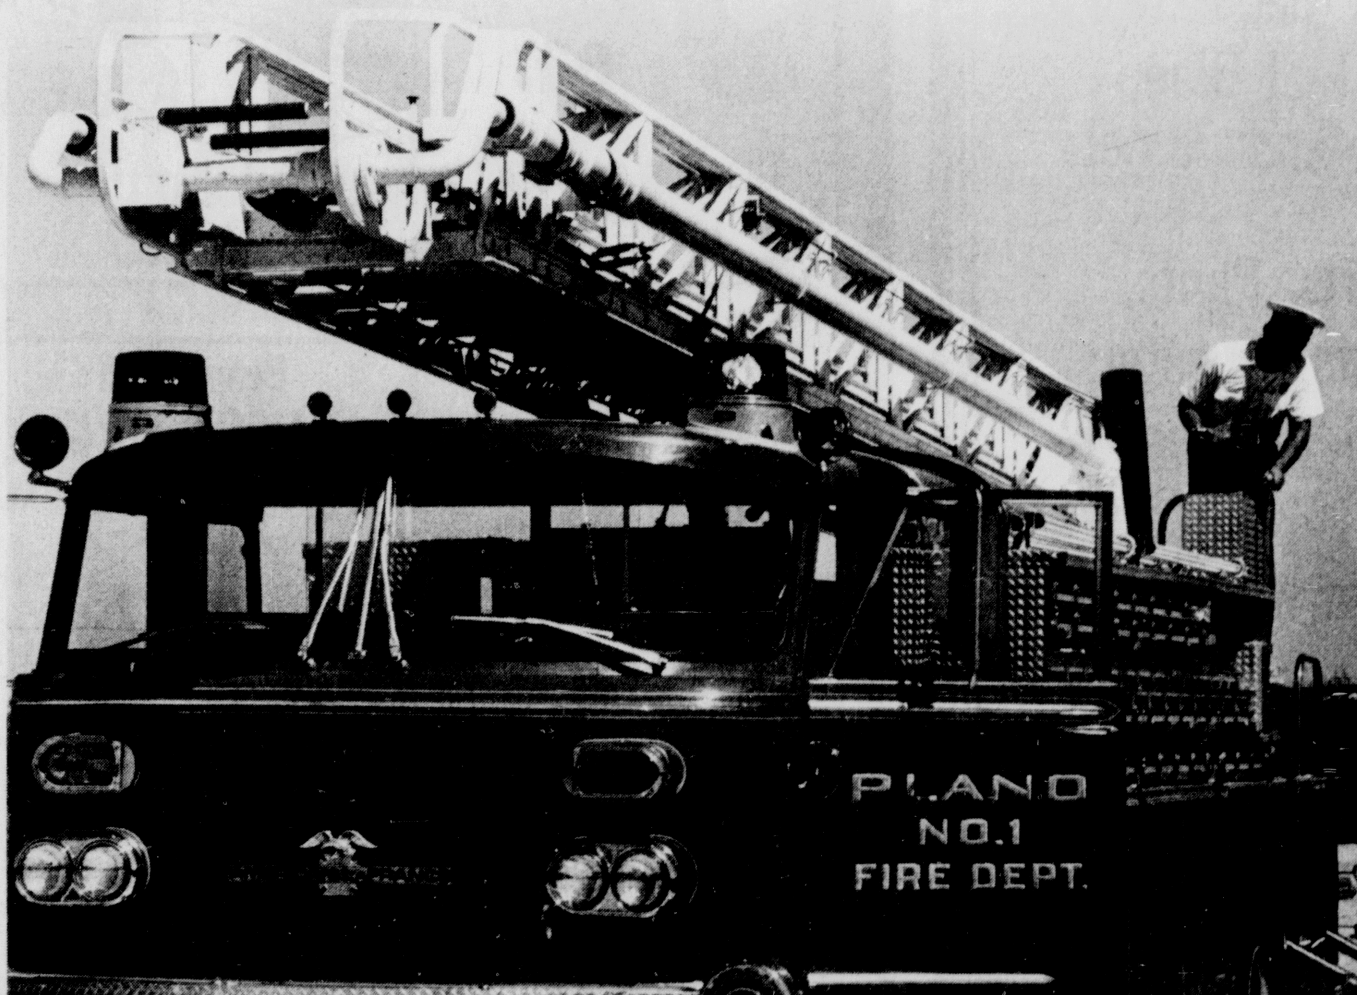

Absentee voting is taking place at the County Government Center, 651 18th St. in Fair Oaks Plaza, from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

'Godspell' Reservations Available

"Godspell," Plano Senior High School theatre department's first production of the year, will premiere Oct. 5 at PSHS.

Reservations can be made beginning tomorrow at the theatre office from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Seats may also be reserved by calling 423-1300, extension 269.

The musical play is scheduled for Oct. 5, 6 and 8 at 8 p.m. in the school theatre with a matinee performance Oct. 9 at 2 p.m.

Newest Firefighter

The pride of the fire department has finally arrived after a wait of almost two years. Plano's 100-foot aerial ladder truck was delivered early this month by American LaFrance. The Ladderchief was built in Elmira, N.Y., at a cost of $148,888, shipped to Fort Worth and driven to Plano by Gilbert Westbrook, field service representative for American LaFrance. He is helping Training Officer Lynn

Rush, and other firefighters learn how to use the truck to its best advantage. The truck was ordered on Oct. 24, 1975, to protect Plano General Hospital and other multi-story buildings. Plano is one of the first cities in the Metroplex to acquire such a truck. The Ladderchief will be stored at Central Station. See additional photos on page 12. (Staff photos by Mike Newman).

CLINICAL MEMBER OF AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF MARRIAGE AND FAMILY COUNSELORS

Author's note: This is the sixth article in a series responding to questions regarding the development of the normal child. A fuller appreciation of our children becomes possible when we know what to expect as they grow and mature. From such a knowledge, it is also possible to spot problems areas early so that help can be obtained when needed. This week we will consider the infant from thirty to thirty four weeks—7 to 8 months of age.

Dear Reader, Your child can now recognize and move towards objects that he spots from across the room. His crawling is improving rapidly, and it is well to be sure that potentially harmful objects have been removed from the areas in which he might be crawling. His skill at grasping and holding on to objects has also improved, and an object that he has picked up may be held for a long time.

Objects now have relationships to other objects also. He may push one object with another, or may use one toy to manipulate another toy. It is not unusual for your youngster to beat on one toy with another. Because his grasping and holding powers are greater now, he can probably hold his bottle or cup and is able to feed himself certain items like cookies. In all of these areas, he seems much more competent than ever before.

Your youngster is now gaining greater coordination throughout his body, and often get arms, legs and body going in the same direction. A good indication of this is his ability to go from a sitting position to a prone position all by himself. Daily, he seems to be progressing at a rapid pace, and gaining more and more skill and coordination. He seems to be interested in learning to stand on his own feet. To this end, he may seem to ask for and respond favorably to assistance from you. He may hold on to your hand or to the side of his playpen or crib for long periods of time to accomplish this. He may even try to move himself while using support.

Socialization of your child is progressing well at rather basic levels. At certain times, your youngster will reach out to people who enter his world, while at other times he will seem to push them away as though he were protesting. He responds to strangers cautiously. He may simply act shy, or even evidence strong distrust. Coming and going of strangers and even of his own parents may be met with some apprehension and even fear. Reassurance becomes very important at these times even though he may not understand all of your words. He does understand the tone of your voice, however, and will respond to it. Other indications of this are his response when you call his name, and his reaction to "no-no" as a sign of your displeasure. He also will like to play simple games with you such as "peek-a-boo."

Questions to be answered in this column may be submitted to "You and Your Family," by Dr. James L. Greenstone, Plano Daily Star-Courier, P.O. Box 248, Plano, Tx., 75074.

New Campus Craze

Television That Won't Rot Minds

By ANN LO LORDO
NEW YORK (UPI) — Why would anyone pay for something they can get for nothing — especially television?

College student activities committees are doing just that to present "The Best of Ernie Kovacs," a Stevie Wonder concert, "Muhammed Ali: Skill, Brains and Guts," or a lecture by Solzhenitsyn to students across the country.

Thousands of students crowd before TV monitors in university cafeterias, lounges and rathskellers to catch a glimpse of "television that won't rot your mind" — a series of special programs produced by Video Tape Network, a New York based firm.

In the basement of a three-story brownstone decorated with antiques and African art, John Friede, VTN president; and his partner, John Lollo, package their own brand of celluloid to bring "special TV directly to college audiences on campus."

The idea for the project germinated in 1969 at the cancellation of the TV space adventure series "Star Trek." Lollo, a former NBC-TV programmer, sifted through millions of postcards from disappointed "Star Trek" fans and decided something had to be done.

"They weren't the people buying soaps and products but they were still an interested audience," he said. "That put the bug in my head. The networks were not the system to deliver what they wanted."

"It was 1969 when everyone was throwing bombs and seizing buildings on college campuses," Lollo said, "but we felt that this was the minority. The majority of students were really looking for some kind of release from the Vietnam War. People wanted to laugh."

And laugh they did. The first show produced by VTN was the video-taped version of "The Groove Tube," a spoof on television programs.

"The question we face is why should people lay out money for something they can get free every night of the week?" Lollo said. "We try to answer that question with the kind of programming we provide."

The company specializes in comedy, offering programs with the Marx Brothers, Richard Pryor, the Firesign Theatre, the Ace Trucking Company and others.

"The National Lampoon Show" produced by VTN a few years ago brought Chevy Chase and John Belushi of Saturday Night Live together for the first time on television.

VTN's monumental success, "The Best of Ernie Kovacs," was aired by the Public Broadcasting System in April. The show was first conceived by Lollo, an Ernie Kovacs buff, and ran as part of a VTN package.

The company's latest projects include a commercial television pilot "Flakes" and a feature length film "Popcorn," both TV satires similar to "The Groove Tube."

Lollo is also negotiating with Jonathon Winters for a comedy sketch "Everything I Always Wanted To Do On TV But Was Afraid To Try."

VTN gears its programming to 17-25 year olds, the "tuned in viewership." The programs available include sports events (NFL Football Follies), rock concerts (Jimi Hendrix, Rolling Stones), documentaries (Future Shock), feature length films (The Producers, Lenny Bruce Without Tears), interviews with artists, musicians and authors.

"Boxing is a big seller," said Friede. "When John came up with the idea for the 'Muhammed Ali: Skill, Brains and Guts' show I told him that he was nuts. But it's a tremendous seller."

The 550 college affiliates rent programs for one week periods at a cost of $90 to $250.

The first colleges to buy Video Tape Network were Carnegie Tech, Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh, State University of New York at Geneseo and University of Illinois at Champagne.

"We went out, got on the road, got on the horn, called the colleges and said 'we're going to sell you TV,'" Friede, a former Wall Street banker, said.

Friede and Lollo selected sample shows, taught the student video committees how to schedule the programs and advised the monitors be placed in "high traffic locations."

"What we said to the student activities' directors was 'Don't think like a library and put video in the basement, think like a house and put it in the living room,'" Friede said.

Office Closing For Conference

The Collin County Veterans' Service Office in McKinney will be closed September 19 through 23, according to Troy Corzine, County Service Officer.

Corzine states that he will be attending the annual statewide Veterans Service Officers School and Training Conference. The school will be held in Dallas at the Baker Hotel.

Persons desiring to obtain general information about Veterans Administration benefits may dial 1-800-792-1110, which is a toll free number to the Waco V. A. Regional Office.

For information in regards to emergency hospital care call V.A. Hospital in Dallas at 376-5451; or the V.A. Hospital in Bonham at 583-2112.

Corzine also said that he would be in his office in Plano at the County Government Center, September 23, and that he would be back in the McKinney office on Monday, September 26.

Ms. Haggerty Attending St. Andrews

Sheila A. Haggerty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Haggerty of 2413 Mallimar St., Plano, is a member of the incoming freshman class at St. Andrews Presbyterian College.

St. Andrews is a four-year liberal arts college located in southeastern North Carolina.

New Law Allows Moving Vehicles

A freeway is supposed to be just that: free. And when a wreck on the main lanes disrupts the free flow of traffic, it can mean big trouble. Usually lasting about 45 minutes, the disruption is dangerous and costly.

That's the reason for a change in the law and a change in public understanding of the law. Many drivers think one should not move vehicles involved in freeway accidents under any circumstances until police arrive.

A new state law, House Bill 368, allows the immediate moving of vehicles involved in accidents on the main lanes of the freeway to a point of safety, providing the vehicles can be moved safely.

Wrecks on the freeway have some serious secondary effects. Wrecks on the freeway often cause other wrecks. At best, freeway wrecks slow the free flow of traffic as a result of other drivers wanting to see what's going on. That slowdown on the freeway can be dangerous.

The new law applies to freeways in population centers of 100,000 people or more. That includes central cities and adjacent incorporated cities and unincorporated urban districts.

In some large cities, notably in Houston, "accident investigation sites" have been provided on freeways by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Ideally, these sites are located out of sight of the freeway in order to eliminate the traffic slowdown by curious rubbernecking drivers.

The new law provides that if the vehicles are operable, they must be removed to an accident investigation site, or to a place of safety on the frontage road, to the nearest cross street or any nearby location where the investigation can be completed in safety.

Yes Now Taking Music Seriously

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International
Just about one year ago, in a recording studio in Montreux, Switzerland, a lost band found itself again.
The band was Yes — likely the world's most popular group of, shall we say, "serious" rockers, serious in the sense that they see their music as art and take it seriously.
At that Swiss studio, after more than two years of pursuing divergent solo careers, the five musicians who once brought the band to a pinnacle of success discovered abruptly that the old magic was back.
There was only one formal change in the Yes lineup to be made at that point — keyboard whiz Rick Wakeman returned to the fold, replacing the less flamboyant Patrick Moraz. Technically, of course, Yes had never ceased to exist — the band kept on touring, even during the lengthy hiatus from recording together. Yes existed on stage, as well — and did record a live album, consisting of previously released material.
But for true fans, the group fragmented shortly after the popular Wakeman departed and — as Moraz replacing him on keyboards for one LP, "Relayer," and on tour — other members of the band concentrated on solo recording efforts. Each of those solo records, however, seemed to prove less successful in the marketplace than its predecessor; and for a time it was strongly rumored that Yes was near a formal dissolution.

Vocalist Jon Anderson says it never came to that point at all.
"Over the last couple of years," he says, "we've been finding out a lot about what we can see as our future. In no way did we mean to put our audience under the impression that we weren't together."
"But over the past couple of years we just decided to do our solo work and see what areas would open up for Yes. And when we came together to do the album, we had quite a lot of experience at finding out what each guy in the band can achieve on his own."
It was almost as if the Yesmen were trying to build a new band with the same people — an impression strengthened by Wakeman's return — and indeed, there's a whole new approach to be found in Yes' new studio LP, "Going For The One" (Atlantic SD-19106).

The album is — by contrast with the last couple of Yes collections — a far more basic kind of record, short on concept and long on some relatively straight-ahead rock. A lot of critics have seen "Going For The One" as a strong step away from Yes' experimental history and toward the mainstream of pop music.

Anderson doesn't entirely agree, though his comments do suggest that the band does see the record as both a climax and a new beginning.
"In some ways," he says,

"there's a lot of experimentation in the album. We spent a lot of time making two pieces of music — 'Turn of the Century' and 'Awaken' are something new for us."
"With 'Awaken' we have a very interesting piece of music — it has a very high momentum and it's complicated but it doesn't sound like it. It's really fashioned out of all the music we've ever done over the years, a sort of combination of all the years we've been together."

Consumer Pamphlet

Booklet Lists Details on Flu

It's no fun to get the flu. You feel awful, you have a fever, a cough, a sore throat, a "runny" nose, and some general muscle aches. And besides the annoyance, it can be a life-threatening illness. Together with pneumonia, flu, or influenza is the fifth leading cause of death in the United States.
A pamphlet from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare explains how you get the flu, why outbreaks of flu occur, and what you can do to protect yourself. To get your copy of the "Flu," send 35 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 129E, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Vaccines for influenza are, of course, only preventive. They are of no value once the disease is under way. Scientists who study influenza have found that the two types of influenza viruses that cause most flu epidemics (type A and type B) change their make-up slightly each year. These annual changes are known as "drifts." For influenza type A, a major shift occurs about every 10 years. These major changes or "new" strains can result in epidemics.

If you come down with the flu, the usual advice from a physician is to go to bed, drink plenty of fluids, and take aspirin to relieve some of the uncomfortable symptoms of influenza. If complications occur, such as a secondary bacterial infection in the lower respiratory tract, usually antibiotics are used.
"Flu," (35 cents) is just one of more than 200 federal publications of consumer interest included in the "Consumer Information Catalog," published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration. To get your free copy of the catalog, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Open House Scheduled At Carswell

Carswell Air Force Base, located near the intersection of Interstate 20 and Route 183 in Fort Worth, will host its annual Open House Saturday, Oct. 15. Various static military aircraft displays and an airshow featuring the U.S. Air Force Aerial Demonstration Team, "The Thunderbirds," are scheduled to highlight the activities. The gates will open to the public at 10 a.m. Admission will be free.

Band to Collect Recycables

The Plano Senior High Band will collect paper, rags and aluminum cans Saturday, Sept. 24, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5:30 p.m. A collection truck will be parked near Rice Stadium on Avenue G. For pickup, phone 423-3072 or 424-3774. The materials will be taken to a recycling center for sale, with proceeds to help finance band projects.

By STEVE KIDNEY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rod McKuen is a bastard. He is also a songwriter, composer, and America's bestselling poet.

McKuen's first prose effort, "Finding My Father," is the story of his search for the man his mother knew briefly but did not marry. Rod never knew his father. "I'm sure they must have been in love," McKuen said in an interview during a promotional tour for the paperback edition of the book. "But you know he was married. I've never been bitter about him or felt he did me a disservice."

"He was in the forefront of my consciousness every hour I lived," McKuen wrote. "I've wondered if he were tall or short, intelligent or a man of common sense, beautiful or plain, a criminal or a barrister, a teacher or a bum."

Florists Attend Fiesta

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Biggerstaff of Biggerstaff Flowers, attended the 1977 "Acapulco Fiesta" Convention of Florists' Transworld Delivery Association, held at the Acapulco Princess Hotel in Mexico last month.

Highlights of the convention included the FTD Annual Members' Meeting at which association business was transacted, and election of new national officers. Florists' Transworld Delivery Association is a co-operative association, owned and operated by over 15,000 retail florist members in North and South America. Through the FTD service, and the service of its international affiliate, Interflora, flowers-by-wire can be sent practically anywhere in the world.

McKuen Discusses Finding Father

at a Salvation Army hospital. No record was made of the father or his whereabouts.

Rod spent his early years in a succession of Depression era tent cities and roadside camps with his mother and new stepfather, a WPA construction worker and a heavy drinker who abused his illegitimate stepson.

Rod would invent romantic stories about his real father as an explorer, movie star, or fighter pilot. "I fantasized that he would not be like my stepfather," McKuen wrote.

At age 11 he "ran away just to get away," McKuen wrote. "I've wondered if he were tall or short, intelligent or a man of common sense, beautiful or plain, a criminal or a barrister, a teacher or a bum."

But wherever he went, he searched for a clue to his father's identity.

"I never gave up hope. When I got to a new town I would go directly to the phone book and the voting registrar to look for a 'McKuen.'"

He visited his mother often, but when he asked about his father, she would get upset and refuse to tell him anything. "I stopped asking because of her feelings. I still searched from time to time, but I never let on to her," said McKuen. She died in 1971.

In October, 1975, McKuen asked a San Francisco detective agency for help in finding his father. The agency placed a personal ad in several newspapers, and the story was picked up by columnist Herb Caen.

Letters and telegrams poured in. Many were from adoptees and others giving hints on how to continue the search.

They found nearly 100 spellings of his last name, but none were spelled like his. He interviewed dozens of people living in Oakland in the early 1930's, but got nowhere.

Two months later, a Los Angeles County marriage certificate issued on November 12, 1921, to a Rodney Marion McKune was found. Friends and relatives were questioned. Photographs were studied. Public records checked.

But no one remembered Rodney McKune going to California in the 1930's.

Frustrated, McKuen — who was baptized a Mormon as a child — decided to check the Mormon Genealogical Library in Salt Lake City. He found a man, Lawrence Ranger, who kept records for the church in 1930's. He said he had known Rodney McKune.

"We were pals," Ranger recalled, "real pals. In '31 — no, I think it was the summer of '32 — we drove out to California together."

Rod McKuen had found his father.

Rodney Marion McKune died in 1963 in Santa Monica — less than 20 miles from where his son lived at the time.

McKuen visited McKune's only surviving relative, a sister living in a remote Utah village, and his newfound aunt told her newfound nephew all about his father.

"I replaced a missing piece of my life," McKuen said. "And I think I've become a better, more compassionate man for having looked for and found my father."

Of "Finding My Father," McKuen says: "It is the story of my mother and father; my way of saying 'thank you.'"

Who Is Responsible

For Elderly Parents?

NEW YORK (UPI) — How do you, son or daughter, feel about your role in taking care of elderly Mom and Dad? Or, is this a governmental problem?

One national survey found some 37 per cent of those polled agreed that grown children should feel financially responsible for their parents. Another 34 per cent disagreed, while 30 per cent had no strong opinion. So reported the American Council of Life Insurance.

Here's a gift to help you unpack.

Networks Reduce Violence on TV

Some television industry officials say they are being persecuted because people are demanding less television violence. Meanwhile, the medical profession, the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers (PTA), and other groups are developing new programs to encourage positive viewing habits as well as eliminating unnecessary television violence.

Several top television producers complain that public complaints have forced them to cut back violence and they fear restraints on other subjects will be next. Some producers want programming with as few restraints as possible, hoping that the "good taste of the public" will do away with bad ideas, several producers said in a recent issue of TV Guide.

TMA points out that programming with few restraints on violence has existed for years. And now the "good taste of the public" is calling for less violence. Decreasing this glut of unnecessary violence is not censorship. It is protecting the public from an environmental hazard that the U.S. Surgeon General, TMA and several researchers say can harm people.

The networks have responded to the pressure with promises of less violence. But only a close analysis will tell what the fall line-up will parade across the screen for 13 weeks, the PTA says.

The Texas PTA has developed a variety of activities designed to give concerned parents a chance to do something about television viewing. Parents can select from activities ranging from an analysis of television's role in the home to a test to see what life would be like for one month with no television at all.

PTA officials felt these activities were necessary because some families use television too much as an electronic babysitter, a video tranquilizer, a replacement for meaningful family activities or even a hypnotist that encourages over-eating. For instance, many people snack almost unconsciously while watching television. They do not really notice the amount or quality of food they consume, but often it is too much of the wrong kinds.

For families who want to have healthier television viewing habits, the PTA has developed one workshop program that uses techniques such as selective viewing, explaining television shows to children, and using television as a springboard for family discussion about important issues.

In another activity, families can keep a diary of television viewing, compare it with others' levels and change viewing habits if they think the television is too dominant.

Many local PTAs just now are beginning to plan some of these programs designed by state headquarters. Local efforts also may be aimed at understanding and influencing local stations.

Citizens Buy Whole Town

By GEOFF DORNAN

MONTELO, Nev. (UPI) — There are still a few towns so small the residents get their kicks Saturday night by watching the traffic light change. Not Montello.

This community of 100 in the remote Eastern Nevada mountains has no stop light. And that, according to the residents, is just one of Montello's advantages.

Besides, they have something else to celebrate. The Montello Citizens Committee recently bought the town from Southern Pacific Railroad — lock, stock and sewer system — for $20,196.

"It's the greatest place to live in the world," said Bryce Kimber, owner of the general store, chairman of the citizens committee. "We have the cleanest air, the cleanest water and everything we need right here."

"We have a store, a post office, school, bar, cafe, church, service station, motel, jailhouse and firehouse."

"There's good deer hunting and pretty good fishing. Nobody bothers to lock their car or house because you don't need to."

"It's one of the few places in this world where you can still be an individual. You can do anything you want here, but if you get out of line, your neighbor will just sock you in the nose."

"We're isolated here, but maybe that's one of the biggest advantages."

Southern Pacific created Montello 70 years ago to refill its locomotives with water, refuel and change crews. Through its history, the railroad has been Montello's main industry, supported by a couple of nearby ranches and a few tourists who took a wrong turn somewhere.

Throughout those 70 years, Southern Pacific has owned the land beneath Montello's few houses and businesses. But the railroad made less and less use of the town as diesels took over and passenger service declined. Today, the railroad is still the town's main industry, but only as home for a Southern Pacific maintenance crew.

"The railroad has abandoned use of Montello and it got to the point where we felt we should own our own property," said Kimber. "It's natural for anybody to own the property their home is on."

He said the town is home to its roughly 100 residents. They are not about to join the list of Nevada ghost towns.

With the help of the Elko County Commission, they talked the railroad into a suitable price, got tax commission approval of a $20,196 interest-free loan from the county, and formed the nonprofit committee to buy the 83-acre town, 220 adjacent acres, the water and sewer systems.

Kimber said the 160 lots will be turned over to the residents with houses and businesses on them.

"We're also going to clean it up a bit, but we don't want to get so big we're going to be harassed with the problems of metropolitan areas."

TOURISM OFF

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The number of foreign tourists visiting Sweden in 1976 was 11.4 per cent less than in the previous year, according to a recently published study from the OECD which also showed that the tourism drop in Sweden was the worst for 18 countries surveyed.

UTD Sets Tryouts For 'Discards' Play

The University of Texas at Dallas Season of the Arts program announces auditions for the award winning original two-act play "Discards."

Written by UT-Dallas graduate Mollie Dillar, the play has won the Open Circle Playwright's award given by Goucher College and first prize in the annual Promising Playwright's Award competition sponsored by the Colonial Players of Annapolis, Maryland.

Director Robert Shaddock, also a UT-Dallas graduate in theatre, will hold auditions from 7-9:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 23, and from 1:30-3:30 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 24 in the Jonsson Center Performance Hall on the UT-Dallas campus. Parts are available for one male and one female.

"Discards" will run at 8 p.m. November 3, 4, and 5 in the University Theatre of The University of Texas at Dallas.

Further information may be obtained by calling the UT-Dallas Performing Arts Office at 690-2982.

Kiwanis Seeking Members

The Fabulous Gold Team and the Black and Blue Team, headed respectively by Jack Harvard and Dr. Terry Henry, are locked in competition as part of the Plano Kiwanis Club's fall membership drive.

The teams will seek active members for the club, with the goal being to double active membership.

The club, which meets Wednesdays at 7 a.m. at Sambo's Restaurant, is a civic club with emphasis on community service.

All former members of the "K" family—Kiwanis, Circle K or Key Clubs—who are interested in re-affiliating may phone Harvard, 363-9191, or Henry, 424-4565, for additional information.

RODEO:

Plano Club Largest In Lone Star Association

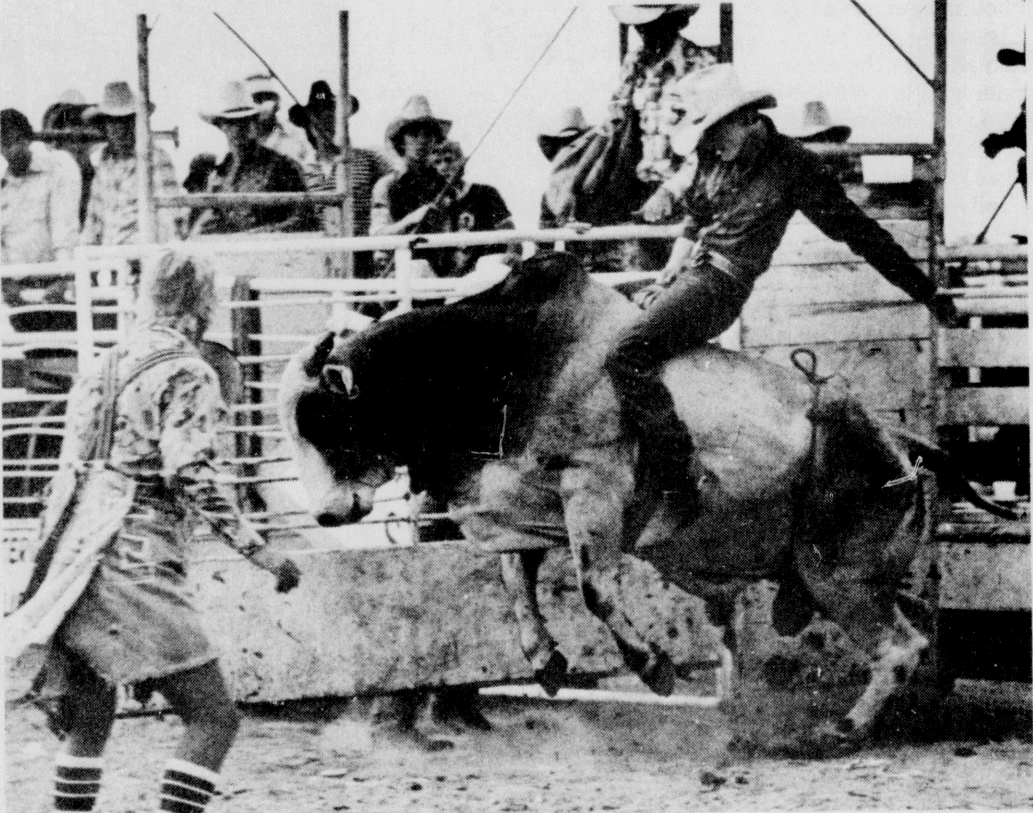

400 Riders In Plano Rodeo

More than 400 contestants representing 50 clubs in the Lone Star Rodeo Association participated in events sponsored by the Plano Rodeo Club last weekend. Two Plano high schoolers earned trophies at the rodeo. David Peter, senior and president of the local rodeo club, captured first place in the bareback bronc riding event while Robin Dobbs, club reporter and senior student, earned first place in girls' bull riding.

The Plano club is the largest in the Lone Star High School Rodeo Association with more than 35 members. The group's rodeo was held Saturday and Sunday at John Coomer Memorial Arena in Wylie.

"A thanks to all of the club members who really worked hard to put on a successful rodeo," said club president Peters. "The club would like to extend a special thanks to all the parents and the sponsors. Without the help of these very special people, the rodeo could not have been such a success."

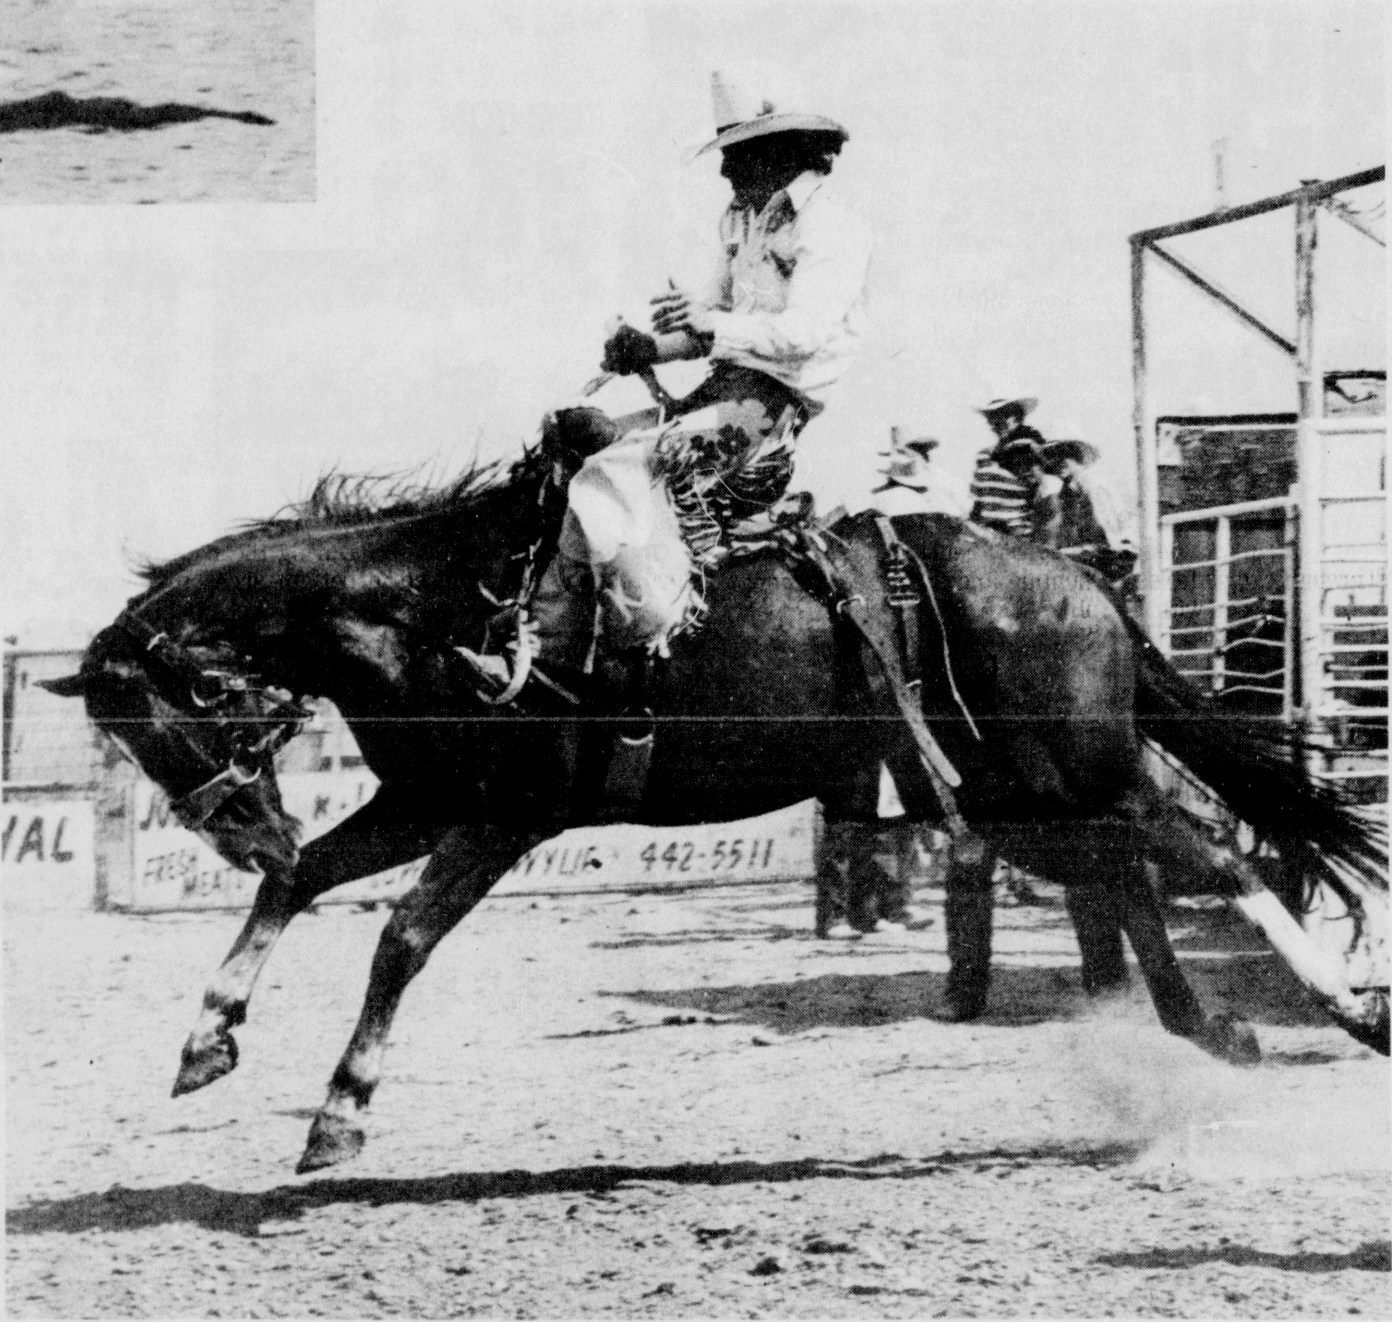

To qualify for membership in the club, a student must be in high school and have passing grades. Information on the club may be obtained by calling 424-7003 or 442-3455.

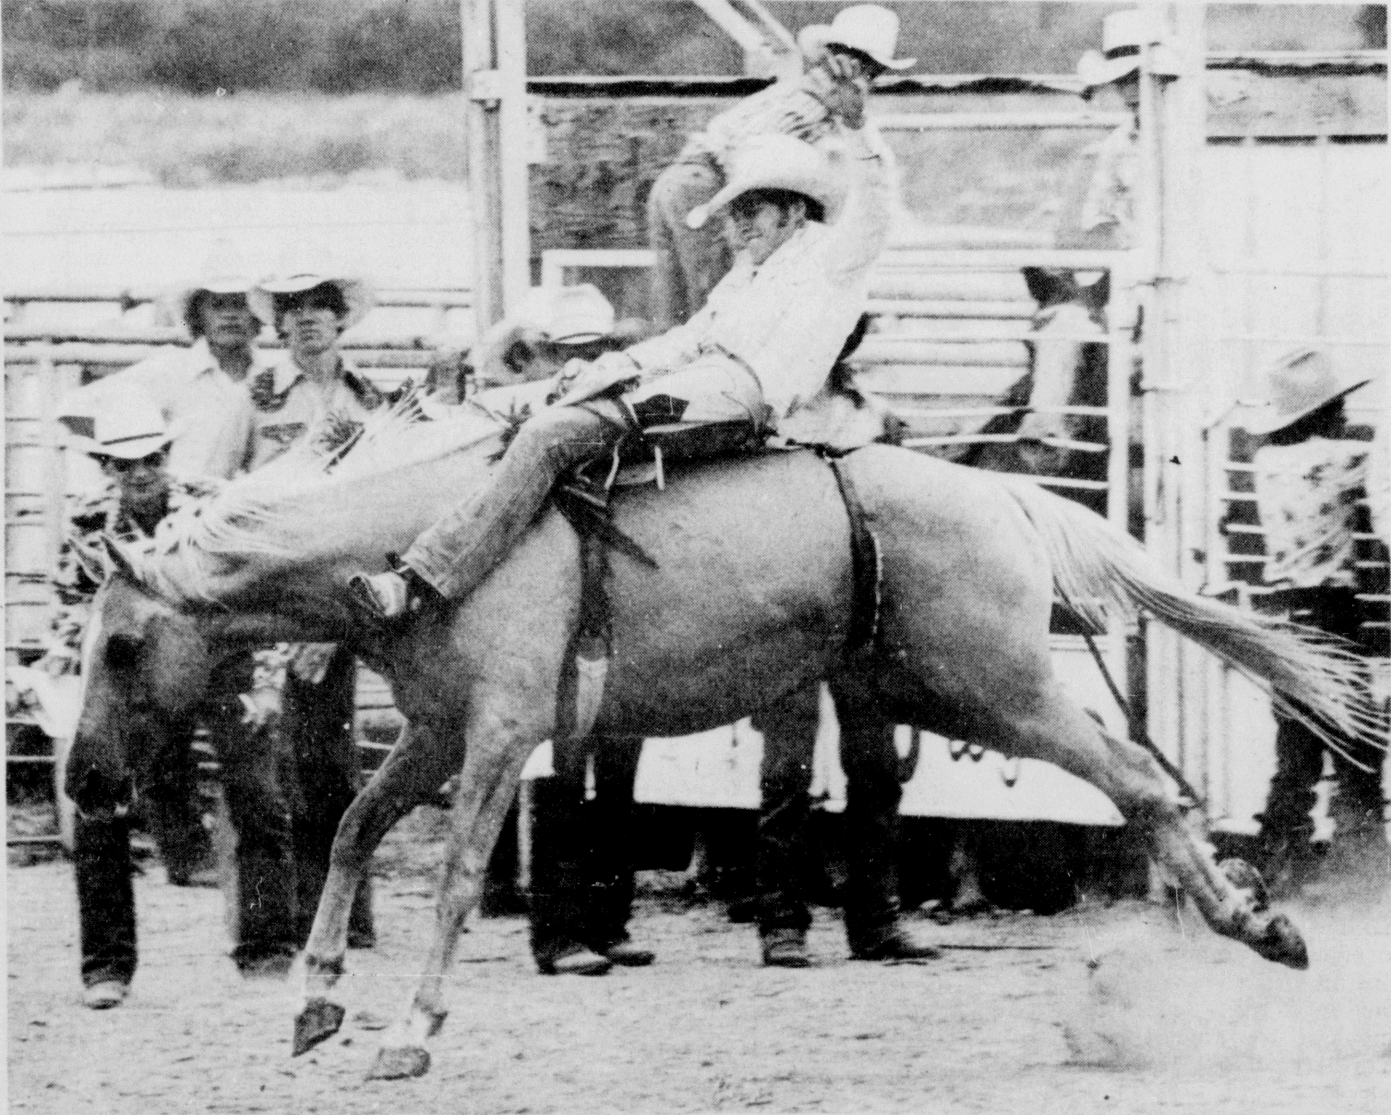

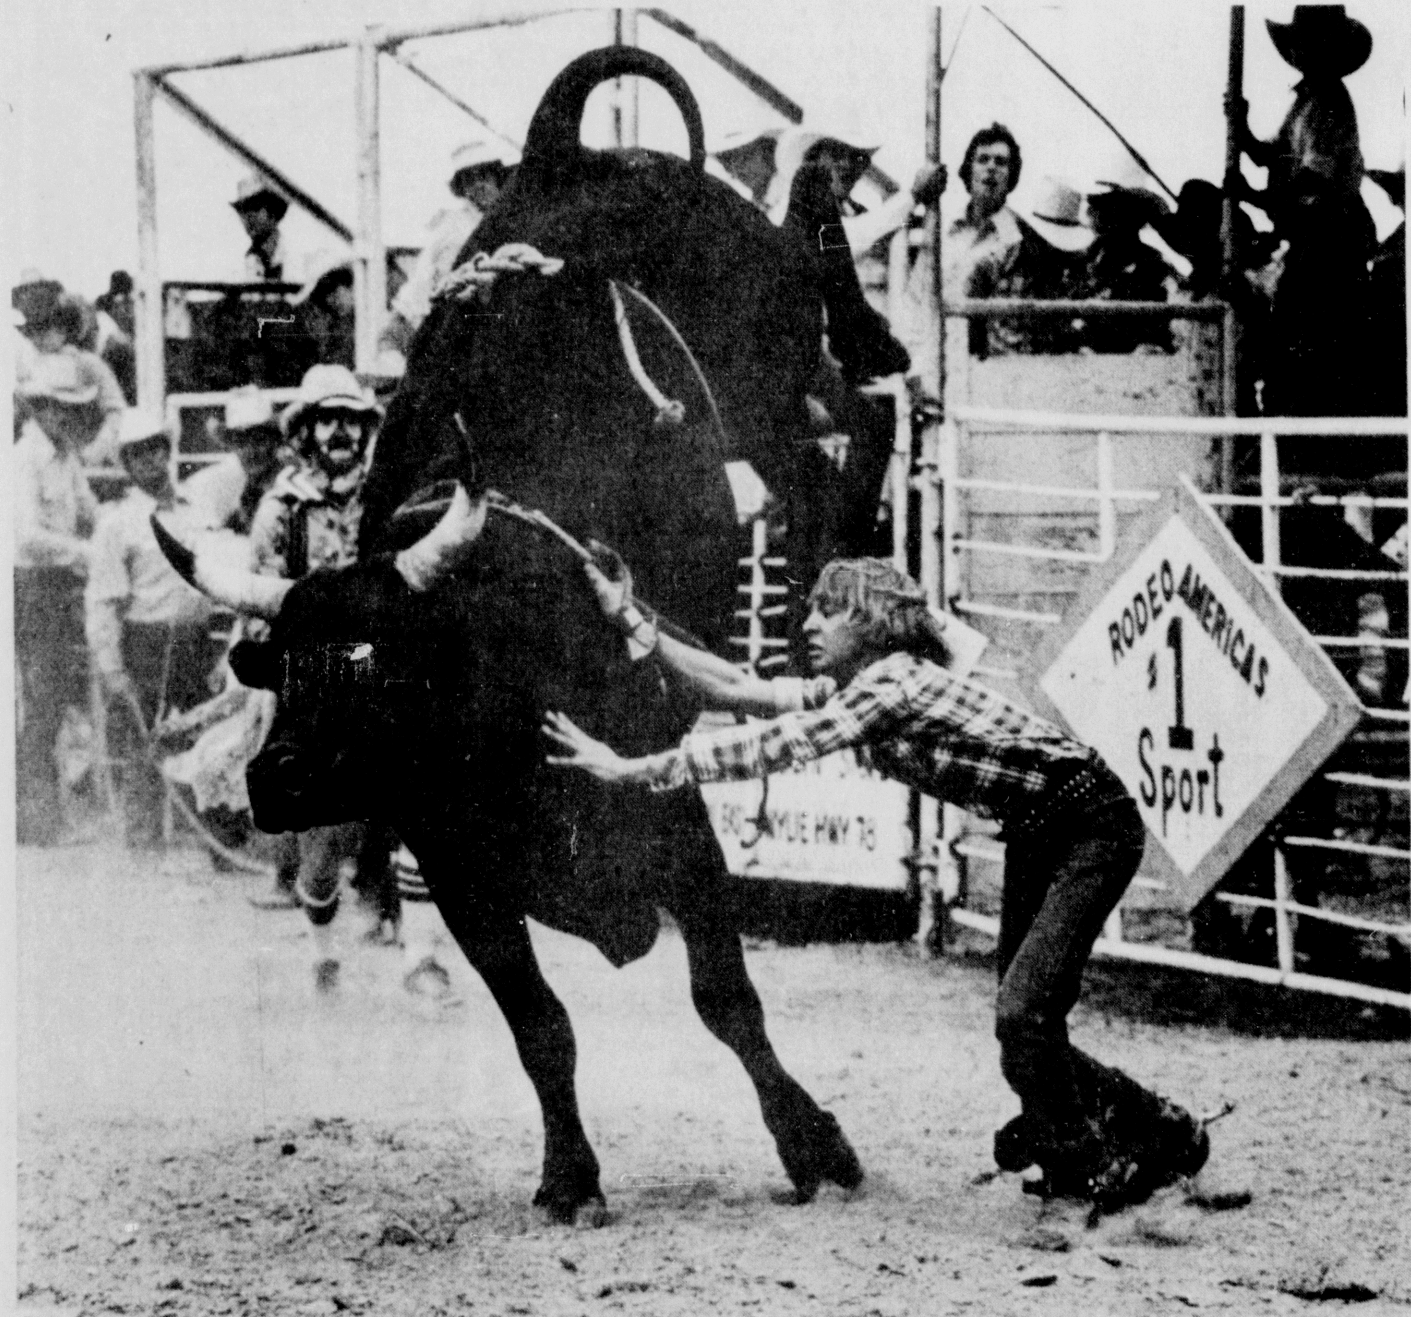

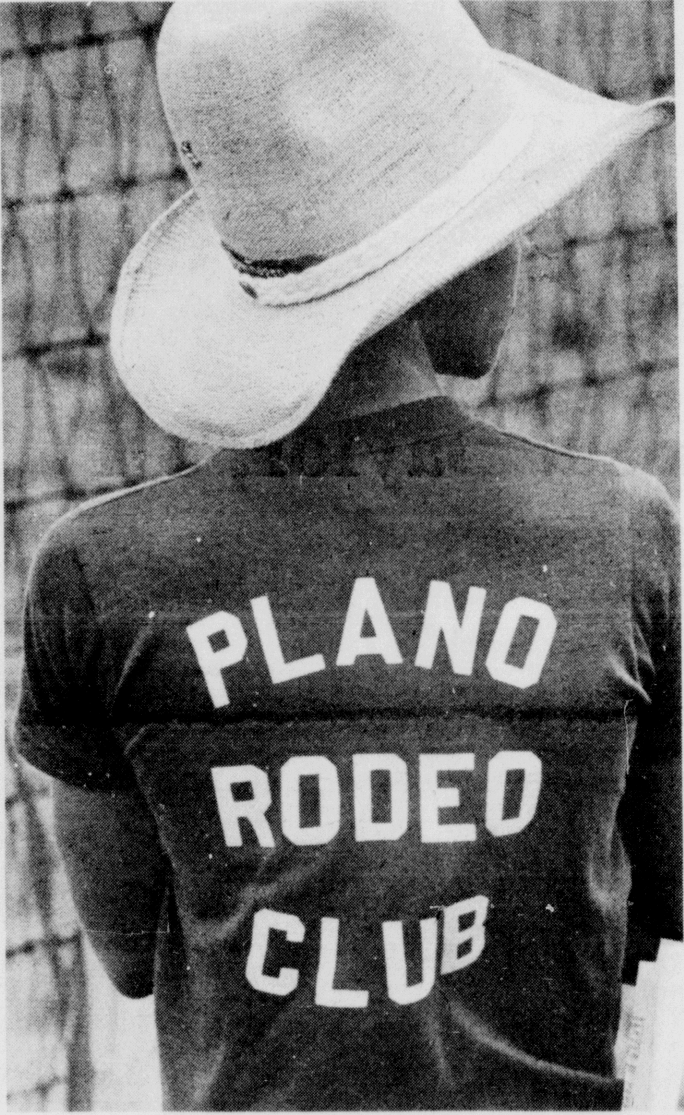

Plano rider Dennis Smith storms out of chute four at the John Coomer Memorial Arena during Sunday's action.

Pole racer Donna Stewart heads for the finish line.

Plano cowboy Ken Herndon has a good ride during the saddle bronc competition Sunday.

David Peters is well on his way to first place in the bareback bronc riding event. At left, bull rider Skip Ray has a short ride. Stock for the rodeo was furnished by Adrian Parker.

—12-AA Roundup— One Team Undefeated

Midlothian remained the only unbeaten team in District 12-AA with a 39-0 win over Alvarado Friday night. The win improved the Midlothian record to 3-0.

Elsewhere in the district Cedar Hill was the only other winner Friday with a 28-0 booting of Southlake Carroll.

Wylie, which began the season as the states fifth ranked class AA team has

COPS Meet Sept. 24

The City of Plano Swim Team, sponsored by the Plano Parks and Recreation Department, will host the North East Texas Swimmers in a meet Saturday, Sept. 24.

The meet will begin at 11 a.m. at the Community Natatorium and will be the first meet competition of the Winter Season for the COPS Team.

The COPS Team is the largest it has ever been with over 145 swimmers representing the City of Plano in various AAU Swim Meets.

The team is now the fourth largest in the state. The public is encouraged to attend the meet on Sept. 24.

Plano Kickers Beat Baylor, 3-1

The Plano Men's Soccer Club defeated the Baylor Green, 3-1, Sunday in North Texas Premier Soccer League action in Division III.

Following Coach Mike Collins pre-game strategy and with a "canuck" style of play, the Plano team penetrated Baylor's penalty box easily.

After 20 minutes, Brad Dill converted a penalty kick into a goal. Then, 21 minutes later, midfielder Henry Ford sent a chip shot to the front line and the ball found its way into the net on a bad hop.

In the second half, Plano exploded for a goal only three minutes deep in the action with Dill slamming the ball with a crossing shot.

Baylor got their lone goal on a penalty kick in the second half.

Goal keeper Dave Guido and defensive backs Harry Mitchell, Larry Snyder, Ron Compton, Ken Sutton and Doug Neeley played outstanding.

Captained by Kimmy Little, the gold and black uniformed Plano team will play the Richardson Hot Spurs this week at a time and place yet to be determined.

Weekly Football Contest

Pierson, Garrison Tie

Bill Pierson, 1420 Everglades, and Bill Garrison, 1204 Biscayne, tied for first place in the weekly Plano Daily Star-Courier Football Contest.

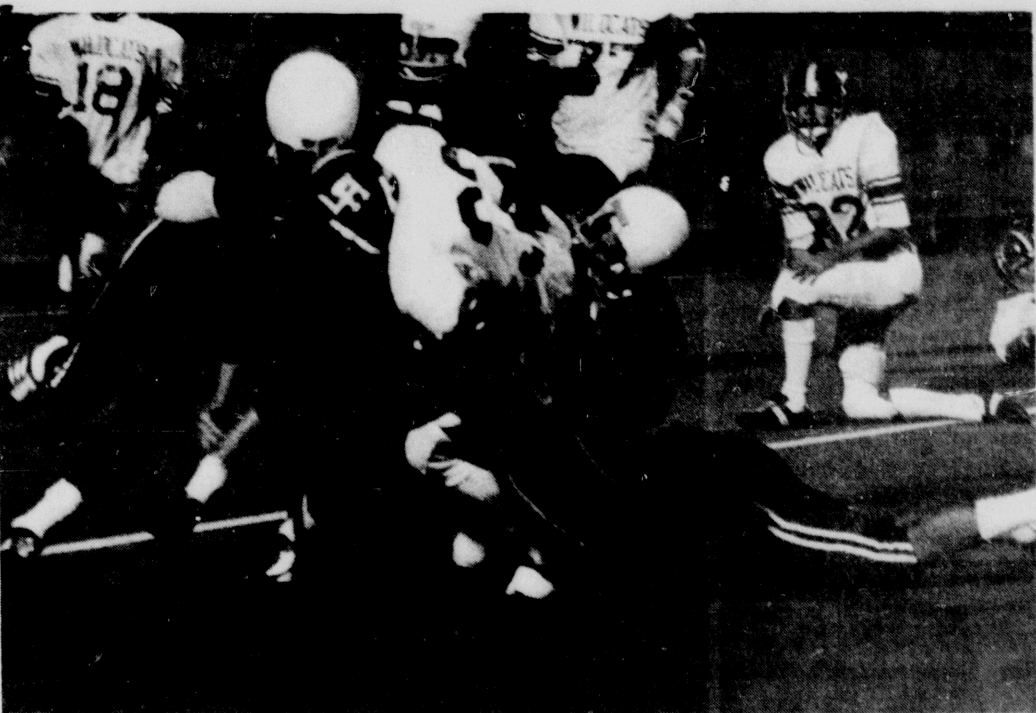

Pierson and Garrison both missed six games and in the tiebreaker, both predicted a Dallas 17-10 win over Minnesota. The score of the game was Dallas by 16-10 which means both men missed by only one point.

They will share the first and second place prize money, $25 and $15, for $20 each.

Third place was won by Mrs. Robert Fox of 2205 Winterstone. She also missed only six games, however, her tiebreaker was three points off. She will receive $10.

The Star-Courier had three other entrants that missed

National Hunting, Fishing Day Set Sept. 24

BY BOB CAMP
Reservoir Ranger

The National Shooting Sports Foundation has announced that Sept. 24 is National Hunting and Fishing Day. In many areas of the country, sportsmen's clubs and other interested groups organize activities to high-light the occasion. The annual national observance dedicated to American hunters and fishermen was endorsed by former President Gerald R. Ford on September 25, 1976 in the following letter:

"It is appropriate during this Bicentennial year to review our national achievements and look ahead to how we can equal and surpass them in the future. The theme for National Hunting and Fishing Day, 'Making A Good Thing Better,' aptly reflects the spirit of our two hundredth anniversary observance.

"As we lay the cornerstone of our third century, we can be encouraged that the conservation movement is succeeding and that most Americans are working hard to preserve our great natural heritage for future generations.

"American hunters and fishermen were among the first environmentalists. They have traditionally held strong opinions about clean air, good water and a livable habitat for wildlife. They have been in the forefront of the activists who want to maintain these qualities, not only because it is important to them, but because they will benefit all of society.

"Through excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment that were imposed with the full endorsement of sportsmen's organizations, millions of dollars have been channeled into the maintenance and improvement of habitat across the land. Some modern-day environmentalists are not aware of the past contributions that our outdoor sportsmen have made to this cause. And others may not fully comprehend that wildlife populations need to be managed scientifically like all other natural resources. Properly regulated by the states with Federal assistance, fishing and hunting are an integral part of wildlife management. Getting this message across by example and not simply by words is a major part of the challenge that lies ahead.

"I welcome the opportunity of this national observance to greet the nation's hunters and fishermen and the organizations that represent them and to commend them on their sensitivity and responsiveness to a movement that deserves the support of all Americans."

The staff of Lake Lavon shares the same sentiments as expressed by Mr. Ford. The 6,800 acres of hunting lands that are available to hunters and 21,400 surface acres of water at Lake Lavon have become favorite sites of many people for hunting and fishing activities.

The early teal season from Sept. 10-18 was not too successful for local waterfowlers. Few teal have been sighted on Lake Lavon. Duck blind permits will be issued beginning Oct. 1. Blind construction will be prohibited prior to that date. Application for permits must be made in person at the Lavon Project Office. No permit will be issued or reserved by mail. Anchored and constructed blinds will require a permit. Blinds may be stationary or floating, on shore or in the lake in designated areas. A $10 administration fee and a $40 deposit (refundable upon satisfactory removal of the blind) is required with registration. Personal checks, money orders or cash are acceptable.

Dove hunting has been slow around the reservoir. Very few birds have been seen in the area. Local hunters have reported good bird populations in the Panhandle, so hunting might be better later in the season after the first good cold front.

Camper service areas in Collin and Little Ridge Parks will be closed on Sept. 26. These camping areas will be closed for the winter season to enable revegetation and repairs now that the busy season has passed. However, camper service areas in East Fork and Lavonia Parks will remain open all winter.

Many people are inquiring about cutting firewood on Lavon Reservoir this winter. During the past two winters wood cutting was allowed in bottom areas that would be

No Upsets In 13-AAAA Play

District 13-AAAA play opened last Friday with no upsets or major surprises in the four league games.

Last year's loop champion, Sherman, breezed past the Greenville Lions 42-27. The Bearcats, rated number one in the state in Class AAAA, have a potent offense that has scored 124 points in only three games. However, their defense has allowed 74 points in as many games.

Denison's Yellowjackets continue to prove that they are for real in 1977. Last year's surprise second place finish team beat Richardson Pearce in their loop opener by a convincing 27-10 score. The Yellowjackets and Sherman are the only two unbeaten teams in the district.

Plano got on the right track with a 24-15 pounding of Richardson Lake Highlands. Plano, who dominated the district until last season, has fielded an inconsistent offense and defense in their three games. The offense has scored 54 points against opponents and the defense has allowed 54 points in as many games.

Richardson was the fourth district team to get on the winning track Friday with a 34-7 win over Paris. Richardson, rated high in the district's pre-season rankings, have proven to have defensive problems but possible came out of the rut with the big win.

Berkner was open last week but open with Richardson High this Friday.

Greenville Vs. Paris will see one of those teams break into the district's winning column.

The game of the week should be Sherman Vs. Denison. This game is as big a rivalry as they come in Texomaland.

PARD S'BallHas 66 Teams

A total of 66 teams are participants in the 1977 Fall Softball Program sponsored by the Plano Parks and Recreation Department. According to Athletic Supervisor Jeff Guyton,

Super TD

For McGhee

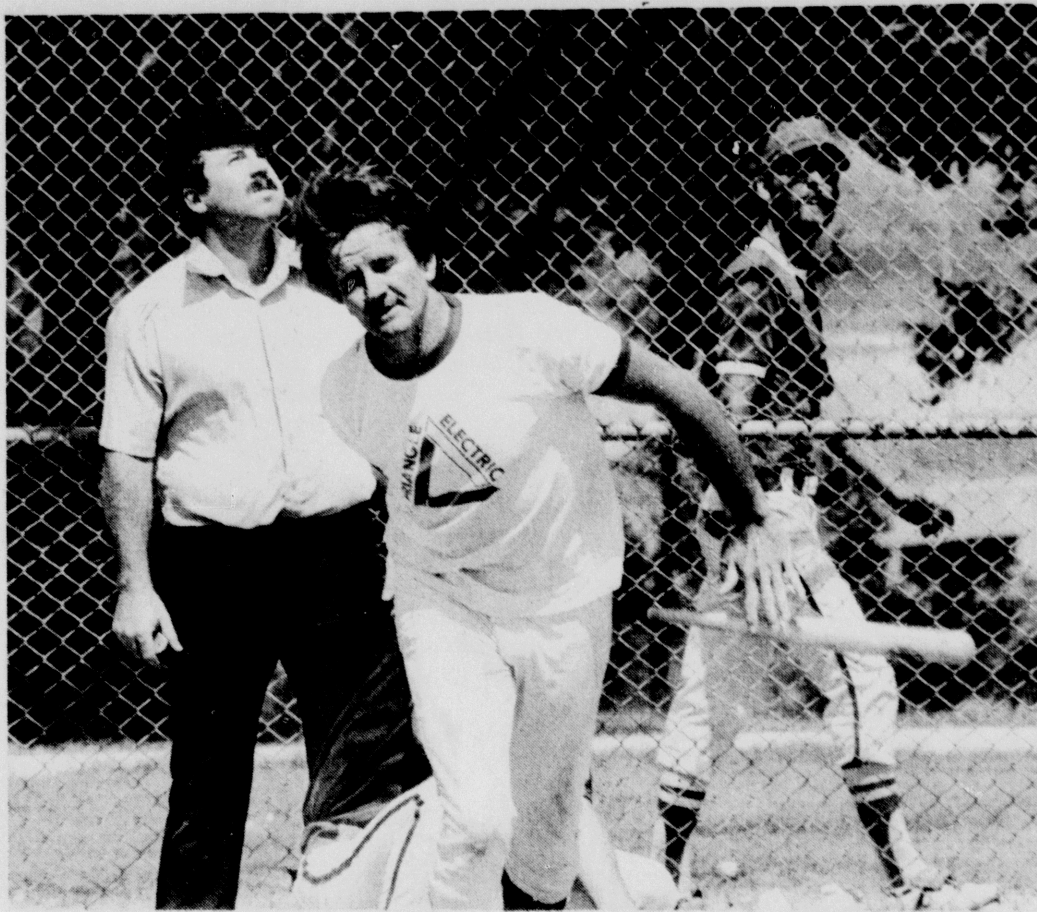

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Green Bay's Max McGhee caught a 37-yard pass from Bart Starr in the first quarter to score the first touchdown in Super Bowl history. McGhee also caught another TD pass to spark the Packers' 35-10 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs on Jan. 15, 1967.

"This represents a 175 percent increase over last fall's program."

The rain has been the dominant force the past three weeks as several teams are still trying to play their first game. Forty-five teams are participating in the Mens Open League with seven zone championships being contested.

In the Mens Church League, two divisional championships are being contested by 14 teams, while in the Womens Division, seven teams are trying for the overall Womens League crown.

The Plano Parks and Recreation Department will be sponsoring a Mens Open Tournament on Saturday and Sunday Sept. 24-25.

Softball is big in Plano this fall with 66 teams competing in the Plano Parks and Recreation Department's leagues. Rain has caused some scheduling problems. The 1977 league has an increase of 175 percent over last fall's league. (Staff Photo by Mike Newman).

Road Runners LeadIn Bowling League

Ted Vaughn has the men's high average with 178 and Ann Laymon has the best women's average with a 169 in the Friday Night Couples Bowling League at the Plano Lanes located at 2500 East 14th St.

In the team standings, The Roadrunners lead the league with a 6-2 record and total pins of 3654. Second place is held by the Stoned Rollers with a 6-2 mark and 3477 pins.

In the highlights of last Friday's matches, Pat Spearman bowled 50 pins over her average in one game.

Rice Expects Tough Game

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coach Homer Rice says he expects LSU to play his Rice Owls a tough game Saturday even though the Tigers may not be as good as the Florida Gators.

"LSU will be more physical in Tiger Stadium," Rice said. "Unfortunately, when you get in Tiger Stadium, they lock the gates and there is no way to get out."

More than that, the coach said, LSU will be coming off a 24-21 upset loss to Indiana and he did not expect them to be in a festive mood.

Florida sprinted past Rice 48-3 last Saturday, and the game cost the Owls their No.

1 receiver, Doug Cunningham, and a starting defensive end. Cunningham bruised some sore ribs and end Charles Drayden hurt a knee. Neither will play at LSU.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rick Mount has reconsidered his decision to terminate a two-year retirement from pro basketball and to try to make the Houston Rockets team, a Rockets spokesman said Tuesday.

Mount, 30, had signed a Rockets contract and was expected to join the team for the beginning of training camp Wednesday.

Tom Nissalke with 13 players on the roster and with only one guard, rookie Phil Bond, who was not on the 1976-77 Rockets roster.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A&M coach Emory Bellard said Tuesday he was concerned about the physical condition of fullback George Woodard, who pulled a groin muscle against Virginia Tech last Saturday.

"He was at practice Monday, but he couldn't run," said Bellard. "He will play against Texas Tech Saturday if he can run, but if he can't, then Eddie Hardin will be our fullback.

Woodard's injury is not a serious one, but it is serious this week."

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Tech head coach Steve Sloan said Tuesday his No. 6 ranked Red Raiders were not even close to being ready for No. 7 ranked Texas A&M this week.

"Every team having to play A&M should automatically be awarded an open date the week before," Sloan said, contending it would take at least two weeks to be ready for A&M.

Sloan also said walk-on kicking specialist Bill Adams had been awarded a scholarship following his record-tying seven extra points in Tech's win over New Mexico last week.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston coach Bill Yeoman Tuesday announced three lineup changes in his defensive unit for this Saturday's game against the University of Utah.

Yeoman said sophomore Joe Redmon would start at right end, Steve Bradham would move to first team linebacker and Harold Fields would start at strong safety.

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Baylor coach Grant Teaff said Tuesday he was having difficulty finding enough players to take on Nebraska this week because of injuries sustained in the Bears' first two outings.

Teaff said noseguard Gary Don Johnson would be out for the rest of the season with a knee injury and sophomore quarterback Greg Wood was the likely starter against the Cornhuskers almost by default.

He said Sammy Bickham, who started at quarterback against Texas Tech in the season opener, and Scott Smith, who started against Kentucky last week, were both at less than full potential with injuries.

Teaff also said linebacker Jerry Harrison and defensive end Lester Ward were doubtful starters this week.

Sabres Lure J. McDaniels

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The NBA Buffalo Braves announced Tuesday that 6-foot 11-inch center Jim McDaniels has accepted an invitation to attend the club's training camp later this month.

McDaniels, 29, a free agent, played for Seattle and Los Angeles in the NBA and Carolina and Kentucky in the now-defunct American Basketball Association.

Plano Moves Up With Ladder Truck

Multi-story buildings in Plano now have the added security of the fire department's new aerial ladder truck. The Ladderchief from American LaFrance's Century Series was ordered by the City Council on Oct. 24, 1975. Delivery was expected in June of this year, but a strike at the company's Elmira, N.Y., plant slowed down construction of the $148,888 truck. Firefighters will be "working out the kinks" of the new piece of equipment during the next few days. Service Representative Gilbert Westbrook, the only man allowed on the extended ladder until safety belts are available, helped the Star-Courier obtain a ladder's-eye view. Today the men planned to fit in additional storage compartments on the truck which will be housed at Central Station.

Brinker Hosts Collins Dinner

Prominent businessman and civic leader, Norman Brinker, will serve as the chairman of the appreciation dinner for U.S. Representative Jim Collins, Republican of the Third District.

The appreciation dinner will be held Nov. 3, at the Fairmont Hotel in the Regency Room. Bill Simon, Secretary of the Treasury during the past two administrations, will be the dinner speaker. A reception will precede the dinner. Tickets are $125 each.

Representative Collins is currently in his sixth term of Congress. He is the ranking minority member of the House Investigations Committee, a member of the powerful Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, a member of the Energy and Power Committee and a member of the recent Congressionally-appointed Ad Hoc Energy Committee. He is also a member of the Senior Republican Policy Committee.

Singing, Games and Fun Highlight Event in Murphy

There was a little of something for everyone at the annual Murphy Country Fair held Saturday at the city's community center. The event is sponsored each year by the Murphy Women's Club which uses the money raised through the fair for such community projects as a city library and the volunteer fire department. A large number of Murphy citizens, along with residents of Plano and other nearby communities, were on hand for the weekend festivities. (Staff photos by Mike Newman).

Health's-A-Poppin'

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Children are sent to school to help prepare for their future. The lunch they take may help decide what that future holds for their health.

Would your children's lunch box get a passing grade? By health standards, many lunch favorites would flunk, says Dr. William P. Castelli, director of laboratories for the Framingham Heart Study.

High blood pressure, high cholesterol levels and obesity may all have beginnings in childhood. They're considered leading risk factors in heart disease by Castelli and many other experts. All may in some way be influenced by diet.

Castelli and others favor children following a "prudent diet" similar to what's suggested for the nation as a whole. Its benefits may not stop with your youngster's heart.

"The overconsumption of fat generally, and saturated fat in particular, as well as cholesterol, sugar, salt and alcohol have been related to six of the 10 leading causes of death," said a recent report of the Senate Select Committee On Nutrition And Human Needs. The killers in question? "Heart disease, cancer, cerebrovascular disease, diabetes, arteriosclerosis and cirrhosis of the liver."

Aren't children too young to have to watch their diet? Doctors don't think so.

On an average, Castelli says, one out of 20 persons from birth through age 29 already has a dangerously high cholesterol level. Of these, it's estimated a heart attack will strike one in five males by age 40 and one in five females by age 60.

Moreover, "medically significant obesity" is reportedly on the upswing among children and affects almost one out of four adults. There are indications excess fat fattens our risks in relation to a host of health problems.

Especially if parents have high blood pressure, some leading specialists are all for encouraging youngsters' tastes away from high salt foods. Dr. Castelli thinks this would be wise for all children, since it's variously estimated that Americans tend to get from two or three times to 20 times as much sodium as we need.

How can you pack more health into your child's lunch box? Castelli favors more chicken, turkey and fish meals and less beef. Choose lean beef over fatty cuts.

Prepackaged cold cuts and luncheon meats can be loaded with saturated fat and salt, he says. Saturated fat may account for up to 83 per cent of the calorie count in that all-American hot dog.

He adds that snack foods can be dietary disasters in terms of their fat and salt content. He feels commercial fast foods rich in salt are best avoided. And he points out that almost all canned vegetables and many prepared frozen ones are high in salt, because salt is used in certain processing procedures.

Commercial cookies and cakes tend to be high in saturated fat, which stretches their shelf life, Castelli said. Baking your own offers greater control over both fat and sugar content.

Security Benefits Can Be Available

Many school teachers receive Social Security benefits, according to Ted Hicks, manager of the McKinney Social Security Office. These payments are based on the individual's own work or that of a deceased, disabled, or retired spouse.

Unmarried students under age 22 may be entitled to payments based on work of deceased, disabled, or retired parents during non-school months provided they intend to return to school following vacation.

Hicks said that both teachers and students should be fully aware of Social Security's allowable earnings rules to avoid losing benefits they may be due and to avoid receiving benefits which are not due.

The rule is that one dollar of Social Security benefits is deducted for each two dollars earned over $3000 for affected for any month that is not a "service month". A service month is one in which wages earned exceed $250.

That is why school teachers may receive benefits in summer vacation months, even though earnings for the year may be well over $3000. Anyone who earns over $3000 for the year but not over $250 each month should contact the nearest Social Security Office to see about being paid for the "non-service" months.

Women, Children

Arthritis Hits Two Million

Rheumatoid arthritis typically strikes when the victim—most often a woman—is young or middle-aged. But it also attacks children, who as a result may be crippled for the rest of their lives with painfully swollen joints.

More than two million Americans have rheumatoid arthritis; more than 200,000 of them are children.

The cause of this tragic disease remains a mystery. But now a Dallas researcher has discovered that victims of rheumatoid arthritis have a certain genetically determined immunological makeup—in other words, an inborn predisposition to develop the disease.

Dr. Peter Stastny, associate professor of internal medicine at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical School at Dallas, says there always has been "an undercurrent of suspicion" that a genetic factor is involved in rheumatoid arthritis, but until now the evidence seemed to be against it.

"A well-known study of the Pima and Blackfoot Indian tribes found no evidence of a genetic factor in RA (rheumatoid arthritis)," he says. "That study was highly publicized and it had been generally accepted that perhaps genetics doesn't have much to do with RA after all."

"I think our study reverses that trend. I think from this we can say for sure that there is evidence of a genetic factor in rheumatoid arthritis."

What Dr. Stastny discovered was that certain "genetic markers" (molecules on the surface membrane of the body's cells) occur in a significantly higher percentage of those with RA, as compared to those without the disease. The presence of these markers is determined by an area on a particular chromosome known as the "HLA region," which has a great deal of control over the human response.

"It really is not surprising to find an association between the chromosome that codes for the immune response and a disease such as rheumatoid arthritis, because in RA there are all kinds of funny things going on that involve immunity," Dr. Stastny says. "It's something that one would expect, but this is the first time that it has indeed been found."

Fifty-eight percent of the adult RA patients Dr. Stastny tested had the HLA-determined marker known as "DW4", while only 16 percent of a control group of disease-free adults had it. He also found that another HLA-determined marker, "LDTMO," occurred in 22 percent of juvenile RA patients, compared to only one percent of a control group. One subset of juvenile patients, those with persistent inflammation in just a few joints, showed an even higher occurrence of the LDTMO marker—50 percent. Since Dr. Stastny reported his findings in the scientific journals, they have been confirmed by several independent investigators. One of those investigators, Dr. Hugh McDewitt of Stanford University, has suggested that the discovery may lead to tests that can identify people at risk of developing rheumatoid arthritis.

But that, unfortunately, remains far in the future, Dr. Stastny notes. "We're a long way from clinical application," he says. "DW4 typing is unlikely ever to be a useful diagnostic test, but it is possible that we will find other genetic markers associated with the HLA region that show a bigger differential between the patients and the controls (which is what is needed to make it a useful diagnostic test)."

The discovery does open up new possibilities for performing experiments, Dr. Stastny says. "Presumably it will help us unravel the development of the disease—how and why it appears in certain people. That, most likely, is its importance."

Soviets Finish Nuclear Icebreaker

By EMIL SVEILIS
LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — A private ship, movies every day, swimming pool, gym, club room, fine food and a salary three times what the average Russian earns.

Not bad, if you don't mind crunching polar ice for 10 months. "That's what the crew members aboard the Soviet Union's newest nuclear powered icebreaker, the "Sibir," will do for $470 a month.

Construction of the 22,000-ton "Sibir" has just been completed at the Baltic Ship Yards in Leningrad. After final shakedown, the vessel is scheduled to enter the Soviet Union's Arctic icebreaker fleet next February with Murmansk as home port.

In an exclusive interview, chief constructor Vladimir I. Kuznetsov and deputy chief engineer Ivan M. Kaslov gave an insight into the complexities of ice breaking and the benefits of nuclear energy for such tasks which require long periods away from port.

"First, you can stay on the sea for a long time without taking on fuel. The second reason is that with standard fuel the more it is used up the lighter the ship gets which defeats its purpose," Kuznetsov said.

Kaslov added that icebreakers need very powerful engines to do their job and "because so much power is necessary, a conventional icebreaker uses up so much fuel that it influences the weight of the ship.

"That is why one can build smaller nuclear powered icebreakers and still retain almost the same weight from the time you leave port until the time you return."

According to Kuznetsov the Soviets first began thinking about a nuclear icebreaker in 1954 and five years later the "Lenin," the world's first atomic-powered icebreaker, entered service.

The "Artika," "Sibir's" sister ship, was completed in 1974. Along with these three nuclear powered vessels, the Soviets also have a large fleet of conventional icebreakers.

Asked why Canada or the United States have not developed a fleet of nuclear icebreakers, Kaslov said,

"The main reason is that they don't really need them. Their navigable territory is not as large as ours."

"We plow most of the northern coast all year around," he said. "Our northern region is very wide and we have developed a different kind of shipping industry."

Kuznetsov said a nuclear icebreaker can "crush ice up to 4½ meters (15 feet) thick. The ship does not ram the ice. It slides up onto the ice and then crushes it."

"Sometimes half the body is on the ice and the ice still has not broken," he said.

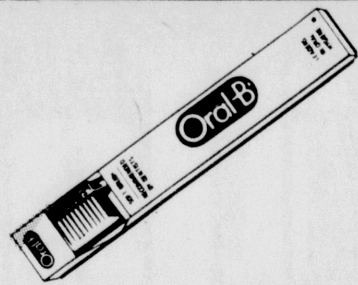

In those instances, he said, "the vessel can wiggle from side to side and up and down." This is achieved through a high pressure ballast pumping system which can pump water from side to side and back and forth inside the ship.

"The 'Sibir' is fully automated," he said. "The ship has an autopilot and all guidance can be provided by one person with the help of computer programming. It is a much more perfect ship than the 'Lenin'."

He said a lot of new technology has gone into the "Sibir." There are new computers "and from the central control panel you can get all onboard and guidance information."

Largest Sausage Missing

CHICOPEE, Mass. (UPI) — The world's largest Polish sausage is missing and presumed eaten.

Its owner said Wednesday someone stole the 25-foot-long, 107-pound kielbasa after it was displayed at the World Kielbasa Festival in Chicopee last weekend. Leon Partyka, manager of Chicopee Provisions Co. Inc., which made the giant sausage, says he hasn't seen it since the festival.

"I just hope whoever took it enjoys it. It's fully cooked and ready to eat," Partyka said.

Partyka said he wouldn't pay a ransom for the kielbasa and doesn't even want it back.

"But if somebody calls and says they have it, I'll send them the rye bread and horse radish to go with it."

Partyka had made some disparaging comments about another giant kielbasa last week, saying residents of Rogers City, Mich., had only made a "giant hot dog" and not a real kielbasa when they cooked a 3,000-pound sausage. He said it was not a collar-shaped link in a single animal casing like traditional kielbasa.

Now he thinks somebody from Michigan may have gotten the last laugh.

"Maybe with all the discussion somebody from Rogers City came down to take a look at it so they'd have both the world's largest hot dog and the world's best tasting kielbasa," he said. "If anybody had to steal it, I hope it was them, just to prove we have the best tasting kielbasa."

Partyka said he didn't see any way his company's giant sausage, which contains pork, beef and veal and a "secret formula of spices," could have been eaten while it was still at the fair, so he thinks it was carted away in one piece.

"It wasn't there Monday morning. We've asked around but nobody knows anything, everybody's innocent," he said.

Partyka said he doesn't plan to report the theft to police and will just "write off" the loss of the kielbasa — worth about $200 on a per pound basis.

He had planned to display the large sausage at other fairs after the festival in Chicopee, which claims to be the nation's kielbasa capital. But now he says the company doesn't have the necessary two weeks to produce another sausage the size of the stolen one.

Shakespeare Views London Tourists

LONDON (UPI) — Thousands of tourists parade along Carnaby Street every day unaware that William Shakespeare is leaning out of a window and peering down at them.

Hundreds more trudge into the National Gallery and unknowingly walk all over Greta Garbo.

"London is full of surprises," says Andrew Lawson, who knows most of them.

Now Lawson, a Londoner by adoption, has collected the oddities and unusual details of this quirky city into a glossy new book called "Discover Unexpected London."

He uncovers a London tourists seldom glimpse and which even residents hardly know—a city like a coral reef, growing slowly and without plan and made up of things living creatures have left behind.

"It has absorbed and preserved the deposit of all those centuries," says historian Hugh Trevor-Roper in the book's introduction. In London, "everything is gradually changed but nothing is ever ended."

Lawson trained as a doctor but switched to painting. Both a painter's eye and a doctor's care for detail came into play when he began roaming London with a camera.

Moreover, he looked at London with an insider's eye. He is a Freeman of the City of London and a liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers — on of the city's ancient guilds, some of whose lesser-known activities his book depicts.

But his 278 color photographs and extensive text also show you where to sit on a metal camel — and not at London zoo — and where to find Dick Whittington's cat.

They show Shakespeare leaning from his window on the Carnaby Street pub called the Shakespeare's Head, and Greta Garbo in mosaic — along with a mosaic Christmas pudding and mud pie — on the National Gallery entrance floor.

"London is a shy old lady, discreet, reserved and unostentatious about her charms," Lawson says.

"She does not reveal much to the man in a hurry, or to the tourist who is most intent upon ticking off his list of official, or even unexpected, sights."

"London speaks to the dawdler, to the wanderer up side streets."

Dawdling up side streets, Lawson photographed dozens of quaint shops and charming signs. He fills two pages with pictures of notable doors.

He has a chapter on "London's Countryside" — its unusually numerous parks — and another on colorful ceremonies from odd little charities to events like Trooping the Color.

Lawson's inside knowledge reveals that "the hustings" is not just any

Domingos Appointed Director

M.P. Domingos has been named personnel director for the Luminator Division of Gulton Industries Inc., located in Plano. The announcement was made today by Luminator president Robert G. Thesing.

Domingos' experience includes serving as human resources manager with Medtronic Inc. in Minneapolis, Minn. Earlier, he had been personnel manager with Northern Telecom Inc. in West Palm Beach, Fla. and before that, held several corporate and divisional level positions with Johnson & Johnson Corp.

He graduated with a BA degree from The Citadel, Charleston, S.C. He then served five years in the U.S. Army and was discharged with the rank of captain.

Gulton's Luminator Division designs and manufactures lighting for all types of transportation including rail, rapid transit, buses and aircraft.

political platform but the name of the dais where the election of London's Lord Mayor takes place. Inside the Eccentrics' Club, appropriately enough, he finds a clock which runs backwards.

"Some of the most delightful details of London buildings," Lawson says, "are so high above the ground that they seem to have been designed for the exclusive enjoyment of steeplejacks and window cleaners."

The bulk of what he pictures, however, can be seen by anyone — though few ever notice. Like the chimney rising from a railing of Tower Bridge, serving the fireplace of a tiny guardroom below. Or charming little statues all over the city of children in quaint, 18th century costume — "charity boys and girls" which once identified schools run by charities.

His book, published by Elsevier-Phaidon, digs into the reasons behind these oddities and excavates their roots in history.

The famous "pearly kings and queens," for instance, fill several pages of his book. He tells how they began as unofficial mediators between street peddlers and police and developed into dynastic collectors for charities and good causes. Most of the city's idiosyncrasies grew this way — they just happened, and they survive because they filled a need. According to Trevor-Roper's introduction, so did the whole of unexpected London.

"We had no benevolent despots in the 18th century, no strategic boulevards in the 19th," he says.

New Film Aims To Make Cops Diet, Exercise

By ANDREW M. NIBLEY
HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The radicals of the 60s disparagingly referred to policemen as "pigs." Now, some of the nation's police departments admit there may be a little too much pork in their precincts.

Law enforcement officials became concerned over obesity within their ranks when a recent survey revealed the average policeman over 30 is in worse physical shape than the average American he is protecting.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police — in conjunction with a federal agency and an insurance company — has launched a campaign to slim down the nation's blue knights.

The first phase of the new program got under way when a movie crew, hired by the Traveler's Insurance Co., set up shop in Hartford to make a promotional film to encourage policemen to exercise.

Using Hartford policemen and a handful of professional actors, the crew produced a "Starsky and Hutch-type" movie which shows policemen "in a typical state of decondition," responding to situations which are both mentally and physically trying.

The audio portion of the movie provides a simulated heartbeat which increases and decreases dramatically, depending on how strenuously the policemen are working.

Essentially, the movie tells a policeman he cannot do his job properly if he is overweight.

But the film also tries to instill a sense of guilt. If you are out of shape, you are letting your partner down. And it may be in a life or death situation.

Traveler's plans to distribute the film to any police department in the nation that wants it. After viewing the movie, the department can write to the firm for free brochures which detail with photographs the kinds of exercises policemen should do to reduce weight and prevent heart and back ailments.

The voluntary approach works.

A similar program for firemen was introduced by the insurance company a few years back and, according to Claire Allen, a Traveler's spokeswoman, "demand was phenomenal."

In fact, it was the overwhelming response to the firemen's program that prompted the International Association of Chiefs of Police to ask Traveler's to design a program for policemen.

"We know we have a problem," said Lt. Ted L'Oranger of the Hartford Police Department. "We have four sergeants out right now with cardiovascular trouble."

Hartford's experience seems to be typical.

Dr. Richard Keelor — director of programs for the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, which is helping to develop the new program — says policemen, along with firemen, experience more low back ailments and heart attacks than any other occupations.

"For the most part, they're behind the wheel or behind a desk all the time," Keelor said. "When they're put into a short-term physical stress situation, it's very hard on their bodies."

Keelor is convinced that many members of the more than 43,000 police departments across the country will respond to the exercise challenge.

What are policemen's gut feelings when they think of knocking off a few inches around the waist?

"The way we eat, sitting in a cruiser munching on fried chicken or a doughnut can't be helping our health at all," one said.

"We know we should exercise," he continued, "but it's hard to do on your own."

Another policeman said he'd be willing to work out, if it was a group venture.

"I'm not going to get off work and run around the block by myself every night," he said. "But if the department sets up an exercise program in the gym with a bunch of guys, I think it would be a lot of fun."

Other policemen at the Hartford precinct weren't as enthusiastic.

"Look at me," said one portbellied patrolman. "I'm 205 (pounds) and fleet as a deer. Do I look like I need exercise?"

When a few of his buddies snickered, he grimaced.

"Well, I could stand to lose a few pounds."

UTD Sets Noontime Concerts

The University of Texas at Dallas music faculty has announced a new noontime series of free informal chamber music concerts to follow its recent program in the University Theatre.

Featured on the opening concert were works by Stravinsky, Kodaly, Rodriguez and Mendelssohn. Performing were professors Future events in the series will feature student performers as well as faculty. Concerts are scheduled for alternate Thursdays at 12:30 p.m. throughout this semester: September 29, October 13, October 27, November 10 and December 1.

All concerts will be given in the University Theatre except the September 29 concert, which will be in the Jonsson Center Performance Hall, JO 2.604.

Works to be heard during the fall season will include an instrumental excerpt from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," Bach's "Capriccio on the Departure of a Beloved Brother" (transcribed for guitar ensemble), Faure's "Dolly" and other instrumental and vocal chamber music.

In addition to these daytime concerts, an evening of chamber music will be presented by the UT-Dallas Collegium Musicum and Voice Studio on Monday, December 5, at 8 p.m. in the University Theatre.

Law and Order Reigns in Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin and Red Square are beautiful at midnight when the long brick walls and gray stones are ablaze from banks of floodlights atop the big GUM department store.

Every hour the poker-stiff guards who stand at the doorway of Lenin's tomb go through an impressive change, goose-stepping out of the square as their replacements take up the watch.

What better time to watch than at midnight, when the square isn't so crowded as during the day and when the stars are fiery little pinpricks in the black Russian sky?

Or so we thought as we sat on the GUM steps at 11:30 p.m., waiting for midnight so we could watch the changing of the guards. Russians sat near us, also passing the time.

"Ne seditye...NE SEDITYE."

The policeman came charging across the square, interrupting our 15 minute conversation with a torrent of Russian that basically translated as: "Sitting is forbidden here."

Our brief attempt to argue failed. He couldn't speak English and we were too flimsy with our Russian to note that he wasn't shooting the locals away.

There are policemen everywhere in Moscow, and they are living proof that a little bit of authority in the Soviet Union goes a long way.

There are policemen in the parking lots of our apartment and policemen on every corner. There are policemen at every entrance of the U.S. Embassy and policemen peppered along the streets.

There are policemen in little booths at almost every major intersection, eagle-eyed bastions of Soviet authority waiting for anyone who dares violate Soviet traffic laws.

Apparently, from conversations with friends, about the only time you cannot find a policeman in Moscow is when you need one. Like the time we drove home from the Kremlin at midnight.

By way of explanation,

Soviet automobiles have good headlights, probably equally as good as Western automobiles. The difference is that you are forbidden to use your headlights for night driving in the city here.

Americans are not accustomed to driving in the dark with only parking lights, and so it was only natural to flick the lever that turns on the headlights. We were immediately assaulted by a drunk in a red Zhiguli, the most prominent Soviet automobile.

First he tailed us down Kutuzovsky Prospekt, flashing his own lights and shouting. Then he pulled alongside and gestured violently toward the lights on our car. Finally he tried to run us off the road.

Such maneuvers are rude violations of Soviet traffic laws and the fact that the man waved a vodka bottle at us would surely have interested even the most liberal traffic cop.

But, although the policemen managed to keep us from sitting in Red Square, they could do little to help us avoid this four-wheeled menace who was intent on killing us because our lights were on.

The Russians seem to have found their own way of coping with the many policemen. In many cases, they just ignore them or push past them with a nasty snort or grunt.

When a fire hit the U.S. Embassy in late August, Soviet police had a field day, afforded all the power anyone could want in a tense situation.

One particularly short and surly militiaman in a long dark green overcoat appropriated a bullhorn from the back of a police car. He walked up to a group of six reporters standing on a corner.

"Crackle, crackle, crackle...back back back...you must get back," he shouted into the bullhorn. No one could understand why he was using it, since he was all of 14 inches away.

Nevertheless, he had a grand time for the rest of the night, shouting "back, back, back," at small groups of people.

It was refreshing to see at about 9 a.m., after a night of watching the Soviet police in action, that they failed to impress the locals who were walking to work.

In an obvious display of his authority, the little policeman with the bullhorn stepped in front of a huge man in a shabby gray suit who was striding purposefully down the sidewalk.

The big man just kept on walking, and the little Soviet policeman bounced off his stomach like a pinball off a hot bumper.

Arab's New Rolls Holds Everything

By PETER J. SHAW

LONDON (UPI) — The world's most expensive new private car, a gold-plated RollsRoyce Phantom VI Landauette, awaited pickup today by its millionaire buyer — an Arab businessman.

Bhatia Karani of the tiny sheikdom of Dubai on the Persian Gulf, paid $146,125 for the velvet-upholstered, air-conditioned, green and white limousine that gets only about 10 miles per gallon.

"It has everything except bullet-proof bodywork," said Victor Barclay, director of the London Rolls distributorship that made the sale.

Karani's Phantom VI is similar to one now being completed as a Silver Jubilee gift from the British motor industry to the Queen.

But his includes almost every possible option. The Queen's will have fewer frills and be about $34,000 cheaper.

"It is the first time we have supplied a Phantom VI with virtually every option," Barclay said.

It has $6,800 worth of gold plating alone — including a Flying Lady hood ornament that has its own burglar alarm — and took 60 men one year to build.

In the passenger section, which has a convertible top, there is an 11-inch television set — black and white — a cocktail bar, an intercom system and a special stereo-radio cabinet.

The chauffeur sits on green leather. Karani and his passengers can sink into green velvet.

One of Karani's London associates said, "Cars are his hobby and he is looking forward to coming to London to take delivery. He already has one Rolls-Royce and a Mercedes but I think this will be his best yet."

The price tag is not bad considering Rolls-Royce makes only one Phantom VI each year. But it still is only a record for new cars.

A 1926 Hispano-Suiza classic was advertised in the New York Times Sunday for $155,000 and model-J Duesenbergs more than 40 years old have been advertised at prices of $150,000 to more than $200,000.

The most expensive car in the world is believed to be the bulletproof limousine used by U.S. presidents — thought to cost about $400,000.

It's Not All Gravy

One of the nicest parts of our recent vacation for me, was our visit in West Virginia. There I caught a glimpse of some of the happiest times of my childhood, and it felt good to go back for a time.

I love the beauty of the hills, the easy, uncomplicated way of living and the warmth of my family. I am always secure in the knowledge that I can come back any time and be welcome, even though that welcome may add two inches to my waistline in just a few days.

While we were there, I sat in the old porch swing on my grandmother's front porch, and reminisced about all the other times I had sat on that same swing that looked out on the same majestic view. When the sun twinkled on the early morning dew, and the mountains in the distance were with blanketed in mist. When my sister and I collapsed after stuffing ourselves with blueberry cobbler, and gently swang back and forth to ease our aching stomachs. The time I sat out there practicing my clarinet while I dreamed of being famous someday, and only succeeded in scaring the birds away. And most of all, the times when I would sit out there grandma, and she would impart her years of wisdom on a sometimes greatly misguided teenage girl.

Very definitely, going to West Virginia holds alot of magic for me, but the same magic wasn't there for my children. The wall of rock behind grandma's house that used to be our canyon when my brother, sister and I would play, was overgrown with weeds and didn't faintly resemble the canyon of my childhood. The little dimestore that my aunt always took us to so we could buy a coloring book, didn't impress my kids at all, and they thought K Mart was alot more fun. And the people who have been such an important part of my life, meant very little to my children.

And so it is, that I left West Virginia with a heavy heart and misty eyes. I tried not to think about the possibility that I may never see some of my aunts and uncles again, and I tried not to think about my grandmother, who is dying now, dying that has taken her from a strong erect figure seven years ago, to a frail shrunken figure of a person who is lost in a reverie of past memories, and barely recognizable as the grandmother of my past.

And I tried not to be too disappointed that my kids were not as excited about West Virginia as I was. I consoled myself with the knowledge that we were on our way to Michigan to see the people who are important in my children's lives, and that they were building memories that would soon mean as much to them.

Lectures Planned At Heard

The Heard Natural Science Museum will sponsor a lecture by Lester Wilson regarding pre-historical indian pottery of Collin County. The lecture will be presented Tuesday, Oct. 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the Heard Museum, Country Club Road in McKinney.

Wilson of Wylie is a noted amateur archeologist, having participated in numerous archeological excavations in North Central Texas. He was a member of the archeological team that excavated one of the oldest archeological sites in the United States near Lewisville.

In addition to the lecture, Wilson will show slides of ancient Collin County indian pottery. After Wilson's presentation, a discussion will be held concerning the possibility of the formation of an archeological society in Collin County.

The public, including youngsters, is cordially invited with no admission being charged. Any individual possessing archeological items may bring these items for possible identification.

The Legal Way

One of the disadvantages of holding real property in joint tenancy. . . .

Q. After my husband's death, to avoid the expense of probate court again, I was advised to transfer my home into joint tenancy with our daughter, our only child. Now our daughter's husband is urging her to have a court partition our home to get her half of the proceeds resulting from a public sale. Does the law allow this? We live in Illinois.

A. Real property, your home, held in joint tenancy resulting from your gift to your daughter of a half interest, and upon your death the sole ownership, the law says, during your life may by a court your daughter petitions in Illinois be partitioned (divided) and sold at a public sale.

The net proceeds of the sale are divided equally between you and your daughter (Ill. Rev. Stat. Sec. 106-44).

The law says a father can disinherit his son. . . .

Q. I was left out of my father's will. The executor's lawyer tells me I can receive something from my father's residuary estate. What does that mean? I live in New York.

A. A residuary estate, defined in 257 NYS 582-86, is all the property of the testator which remains after debts, administrative expenses, legacies and devises have been satisfied.

The residuary estate is distributed to all the survivors of the decedent as the statute of Descent and Distribution of New York prescribes (E.P.T.L. Sec. 4-1.1). As a survivor, you may share in the residue unless the will had a residuary clause and there again you were not mentioned.

Always a shock, especially to a widow beneficiary of life insurance. . . .

Q. Our mother in North Dakota was in tears when she learned that the $100,000 of father's life insurance would be included for estate taxes in his gross estate. The executor of his will told us, his children, because father kept an "incident of ownership" in the policy. Please explain.

A. Incident of ownership of a policy includes any benefit the deceased policyholder retained: the right to change the beneficiary, to cancel or assign it, to borrow on the cash surrender value and others (31 AFTR 2d Sec. 73-1381).

Insurance companies have policy provisions which eliminate the incident of ownership. The beneficiary may check the policy. Often the holder of the policy is not aware that his policy, because of the incident of ownership, is estate taxable.

When a home-owner is financially strapped can his creditors cause the sale of his home? . . .

Q. We live in Florida. My husband failed in business. His creditors are threatening to sue him, and to have our home sold and have the proceeds apply to the payments of his debts. Can they do this?

A. Your family home by law is exempt from forced sale to satisfy creditors; it's a homestead and no judgment or decree or execution shall be a lien against such exempt property (Fla. Const. Art. 10 Sec. 4 (a)).

Personal property up to $1,000 is also exempt.

Special Graduates Get Jobs

Teaching Skills Forms 'Mission' at College

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Probably no college can match the record of the University of Wisconsin-Stout when it comes to jobs for new graduates.

It is a special mission school in the state's university system.

Of the 1,100 who graduated in June from Stout in Menomonie, Wis., 95 percent are employed. Starting salaries range from $9,000 to $18,000.

So what's the secret at Stout in this era when more than a few with plain old bachelor's degrees in the class of '77 across the nation drive cabs, sell books or hold menial jobs.

Stout's job record for new grads is due to a turn-of-the-century education idea that works as well today as it did then.

Stout was founded in 1893 by State Sen. James H. Stout. His idea: prepare people for the world of work, while offering them also a liberal arts education.

The "special mission" at Stout: a sheepskin plus a salable skill.

Chancellor Robert S. Swanson, in an interview said he got hands-on training as a carpenter when going to the unusual school.

A 1949 graduate, he is a union card-carrying carpenter who owns one home he built with his own hands.

"What we offer," he said, "is not just a formal education but education with a skill."

"The company president may say he wants a man who has been educated for promotion and who can be trained for a specific job."

"But ask the plant foreman who has to do the training. He wants a man who can do the job now. We offer them an employee who can do the job and who is ready for additional responsibility."

Students majoring in hotel and restaurant management and in other food-related subjects operate a restaurant, open to the public.

Although training to be managers, the practical experience in the kitchen and dining room enables the students to be more effective bosses in the restaurant industry.

Industrial education students build an airplane as part of their course work.

Youths preparing to be industrial managers run their own manufacturing facility on campus. They hire employees, do marketing and production development, as well as run an actual assembly line.

They have manufactured such things as steel filing cabinets for the school and bicycle racks.

Some students also get credit for working off campus to fill course requirements.

"This is not a vocational education college."

"Our offerings include those which help students understand the context in which they will perform their work. Liberal arts subjects including history, psychology and the social sciences, for example.

Swanson's practical experience, in his student days? Building a new porch for the then Chancellor's house.

He enjoys sitting on it these days.

"It's a well-built porch, if I must say so," he said, eyes twinkling.

Horseback Ride Benefits Studies

Fishel's Friendly Acres stable in Allen, will conduct a nine-mile horseback ride Saturday, Oct. 22, as part of the third national Ride for Research, an event that raises money for scientific studies to benefit horses.

The local Ride for Research will begin and end at the stable on Highway 5, with checkpoints at the intersections of Jupiter Road and Morton Vale, Parker Road and Sycamore Lane, and Allen Heights and Sycamore. The event is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m.

In the Ride for Research, horsemen obtain sponsors who pledge various amounts of money per mile ridden. All riders receive certificates of participation, while those collecting $15 or more are also awarded special Rider for Research shoulder patches.

Proceeds go to Morris Animal Foundation, a public, nonprofit foundation that has funded more than 200 research projects to benefit horses and other companion animals, including 11 studies at Texas A & M University.

A total of 150 groups throughout the United States organized Rides for Research in 1975 and 1976, raising more than $75,000 to make possible studies of equine colic and reproductive problems at four universities. Nine of the Rides were in Texas.

Horsemen interested in joining the local Ride for Research and anyone who wishes to sponsor a rider may contact Charlene Klee, 1628 Laurel Lane, Plano, Texas 75074, phone 424-1896.

The World of Music

By ROBIN WELLES
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — James Brown is a black, super-charged hunk of vocal energy that they call Soul Brother No. 1.

Since he cut his first million-selling record two decades ago, the king of funky blues has been living in a world of Cadillac comfort.

But Brown has not forgotten those days in Jimmy Carter's Georgia when he was a kid, living in a $7-a-month shack and picking cotton and shining shoes.

There are poor whites and poor blacks — and then poor blacks, Brown-style.

"My family was so poor you wouldn't believe it," he said. "My father greased and washed cars in a filling station."

"In the afternoon I had to walk home along the railroad tracks and pick up pieces of coal left over from the trains. I'd take that home, and we'd use it to keep warm."

When he was about 8 years old, Brown danced for nickels and dimes for soldiers from the National Guard when they were camped outside Augusta.

The Brown boy dropped out of school and then drew a three-year term in reform school for car theft and breaking and entering. But reform school changed him — for the good. He came out determined to put all of his talents and energies into music. He formed his first group and it wasn't long before word was spreading about the volatile vocals of the boy from Augusta.

Brown's latest sure-seller album for Polydor is called "Mutha's Nature." It's a swinging, bouncing beaut.

Also worth a listen:

JIM ED BROWN & HELEN CORNELIUS — Born Believer (RCA) — If you've heard "If It Ain't Love By Now" on the country stations, you know that Brown and Cornelius go together like fresh country milk and breakfast. Jim Ed and Helen first sang together last year and came up with the hit, "I Don't Want to Have to Marry You." Looks like they're doing it again with "Love By Now."

BE BOP DELUXE — Life In The Air Age (Harvest) — Guitarist Bill Nelson leads the British rockers through a hard-driving musical excursion that sets the stage for their next North American tour. Be Bop is a curious mixture of precision and emotionalism as technique sometimes gives way to imaginative gropings into the outer extensions of rock. The group has been a huge success in Europe.

CERRONE — Cerrone's Paradise (Cotillion) — This is the composer-arranger whose disco treatment of "Love in C Minor" raced up the U.S. charts. Cerrone and his European orchestral disco group are back now with this cool, shimmering LP that features a few vocals by Cerrone and a lush chorale backup by women singers.

ROGER WILLIAMS — Evergreen (MCA) — The very commercial piano man from Iowa updates his list of hits with this LP that features winners like the love theme from "A Star Is Born," the theme from "New York, New York," "Love Song," "What Are You Doing the Rest of Your Life," and the theme from "Airport '77." Relentless practice and rehearsal goes into the seemingly effortless Williams piano; he's found that hard work equals success.

ELVIN BISHOP — Raisin' Hell (Capricorn) — The Big Man in Southern boogie is caught live on this LP in blastoffs at the Electric Ballroom in Atlanta and elsewhere in 1976 and early this year. Elvin's joyous exuberance shines through on instant classics like "Travelin' Shoes" and "Sure Feels Good." Mickey Thomas also spins out some great vocals.

Among other things, Classified is very big on good deals in appliances. It is where the smart shoppers look first for bargains in such major appliances as freezers, refrigerators, gas and electric ranges, washers and dryers, compactors, dishwashers and similar items.

Or, if you are thinking small, the Want Ads offer similar savings in such things as toasters, microwave ovens, crock pots, electric skillet, irons, coffee makers and many other kitchen necessities.

But even a good bargain requires cash and you may be a little short. Want Ads can help with that problem. You merely rummage through your storage areas to determine what stored articles are still of usable quality. Then you call our Classified number and arrange an Articles For Sale ad. Our Ad-Visor will help you compose a sure-fire message.

Whether you are hunting bargains or buyers, Want Ads have the answers.

Jewish Recipes Delicious for Anyone

Challah, or egg bread, is traditionally served on the menu for Rosh Hashanah. A Jewish blessing is offered with the wine, also. (Staff Photos by Mike Newman).

Traditional Holiday Recipes

The Jewish holiday season began last week with Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, from sundown on Sept. 13 to sundown the following day.

Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jewish year, the Day of Atonement, will be observed on Thursday, and Sukkoth, the harvest festival, is to be observed Sept. 27 and 28.

There are a number of traditional Jewish foods which are served at this time of year, but they are delicious at any time, and you don't have to be Jewish to enjoy these recipes.

During the time of Rosh Hashanah, it is customary to place honey and fruit not yet eaten that season on the table to denote the wish for a sweet and fruitful year. In many homes a special ceremony is conducted during which each family member dips a portion of apple into the honey and recites a Jewish prayer: "Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who created the fruit of the tree. May it be Thy will, O Lord our God and God of our fathers, to renew unto us a happy and pleasant year."

Although any festive food is served during the holiday, carrots are usually included, as they symbolize prosperity.

Yom Kippur is observed with a day of fasting, this year from sundown Sept. 27 to sundown Sept. 28. The fast is complete, with no food or even water permitted and the evening and day spent in synagogue.

At lunch on the day preceding the holiday, it is customary to serve meat kuppach in soup. The meal which ushers in Yom Kippur is prefaced by the lighting of the ceremonial candles and the kindling of a memorial, or Yahrzeit light. Grace is recited before and after the meal.

The Sukkoth holiday commemorates the annual fall pilgrimage of the people of ancient Israel to the Temple Sukkoth. During this celebration a lulav, a palm branch bound with myrtle and willow, is waved and an esrog, a type of citrus fruit, is held to symbolize the produce of the earth.

The holiday is represented by the Sukkah, a small rough structure erected open to the sky and decorated by the women of each family with autumn foliage, fruits, flowers and brightly-colored vegetables. Benedictions are pronounced and all meals are eaten in the Sukkah. Although there are no specific foods for the holiday, a general custom is that of serving stuffed cabbage for at least one meal during the holiday period. The recipe is listed here.

The Plano Cottonpatch chapter of the Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation through Training, a Jewish women's group, will sponsor a Family Sukkoth Festival on Sunday, Sept. 25, at the home of Tammy Baskin, 2901 Peppertree. Participating families will decorate the Sukkah and take part in a festive meal. A $5 donation will be required of participating families. Additional information is available from Mrs. Baskin, 423-0646.

Also planned is an Oct. 13 bunch-o-lunch, during which ORT members will deliver a lunch consisting of a corned beef sandwich on rye, chips and homemade cake for $2.50 per person. Orders must be placed through Terry Cavallito, 423-9221, or Diana Green, 423-8451, by Oct. 6.

Following are a number of traditional Jewish recipes.

A typical Rosh Hashanah menu might include wine, apples dipped in honey, Challah (egg bread), Gefillte fish, sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, golden chicken soup and Mondeln (soup nuts), roast turkey, duck or chicken, carrot sticks in honey, string beans, fruit compote, honey cake, New Year's fruit cake, coffee and tea.

Carrot Sticks In Honey

3 T shortening
9 carrots, scraped and quartered
2 T. water
¼ cup honey
½ ts. salt
¼ t. nutmeg

Melt shortening in a saucepan. Add carrots, water, honey, salt and nutmeg. Cover and cook over low heat for 20 minutes, or until carrots are tender. Stir gently but frequently.

Traditional Honey Leckach (Honey Cake)

1¾ cups dark honey
1 cup coffee, double-strength
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
3½ cups flour
Dash salt
2 t. baking powder
1 t. baking soda
1 t. allspice
1 t. cinnamon
2 T. vegetable oil

Bring the honey gently to boiling; cool, then add the coffee. Beat the eggs until light and lemon-colored, then add the oil gradually, beating well to blend. Beat in sugar gradually. Sift together dry ingredients, then add to egg mixture alternately with the honey and coffee, about a third of each mixture at a time. Mix well. Pour smooth batter in a greased 9½ x 5½ x 3 inch loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (300 to 325 degrees F.) for about one hour. Invert to cool in pan. Remove and store. This cake keeps well.

L'Shana Tova Fruit Cake (New Year Fruit Cake)

3 cups flour
½ t. baking soda
½ t. salt
1 t. cinnamon
¼ t. cloves
1 cup vegetable fat
1 cup brown sugar
4 eggs
½ cup each candied cherries, citron orange and lemon peel, all finely sliced
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup currants, washed and dried
½ cup almonds, blanched and shredded
¼ cup plum or currant jelly
½ cup honey

Sift together the flour, baking soda, salt and spices. Cream the fat; add sugar gradually, beating until very light and fluffy. Add the eggs, one at a time; beat well. Add the fruit and nuts which have been mixed with a little flour; mix well. Add the jelly and honey, mixing well again. Add flour mixture about a third at a time, mixing well after each addition. Bake in well-greased, paper-lined caked pans or pound coffee tins, filling each about two-thirds full of batter. To determine baking time, weigh the filled pan. Bake in a slow oven (250 degrees F.), allowing an hour for the first pound of batter and an additional 45 minutes for each additional pound of batter in baking pan. Then, add 15 minutes for "drying out" time. This recipe makes about 5 pounds of cake.

Noodle Pudding

2 cups uncooked broad or medium noodles
2 T. chicken fat
3 eggs, separated
¾ cup seedless raisins (optional)
½ cup sugar
1 t. ground cinnamon
¼ t. salt

Cook noodles until tender-firm; drain thoroughly. Add chicken fat, well-beaten egg yolks, raisins, sugar and seasonings. Beat the egg whites stiff and fold into the pudding. Pour into a greased 1 qt. casserole and bake, uncovered, at 350 F. about 70 minutes, until well-browned. This is usually served as a side dish with the Sabbath or holiday poultry. Serves 5.

Chicken Soup

1 lean 5 lb. fowl, cut up or whole
3 qts. water
1 large onion
1 large carrot
2 stalks celery
Few sprigs parsley
1 T. salt
¼ t. white pepper
1 t. MSG

Place chicken and water in a large soup kettle. Bring to a boil, lower the heat and simmer, covered, for one hour. Add remaining ingredients and cook until the chicken is tender. The time will vary with the tenderness of the fowl. Strain the soup and chill overnight. Remove the cake of fat. This makes about two quarts of soup. Serve with rice, fine noodles, kashe.

Stuffed Cabbage

10 large cabbage leaves
1 pound lean ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped fine
¾ cup cooked rice
¾ t. salt
¼ t. white pepper
1 slightly beaten egg
1 pound sauerkraut
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 sliced onion
½ cup seedless raisins
¼ to ½ cup dark brown sugar
½ t. salt

Select leaves from the outside of a large head of cabbage. Place in boiling water for five minutes, then drain. Mix together the beef, chopped onion, rice, ¾ t. salt, pepper and egg. Put about ¼ cup of this mixture in each cabbage leaf at the stem end; roll up so that the filling is completely covered. Place the sauerkraut in a heavy 4-qt. saucepan, cover with the meat-filled cabbage rolls and add remaining ingredients. Cover tightly, bring to a boil, then simmer two hours or cook in pressure cooker for 30 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Reduce pressure quickly. Taste the gravy, then add brown sugar and salt to taste. Serves 5.

Beef, Eggs Week's Good Buys

Beef is plentiful, eggs are economical, soft fruits fade out as citrus fruits begin to appear and some vegetables—among them potatoes—are good choices this week, says Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In beef, look for economical buys on chuck roasts and chuck steaks, shoulder roasts and ground beef. Good buys are the longer, slower cooking selections. Pork production is seasonally down, but scattered specials include Boston butt roasts, pork shoulder steaks and smoked picnics.

Eggs offer an economical protein choice. Whole fryers are one of the better choices in poultry this week, Mrs. Clyatt says.

Soft shell squash, carrots, Bell peppers, cucumbers and cooking greens are other good vegetable choices, along with potatoes.

Supplies of soft fresh summer fruits—peaches, plums and nectarines—are lower, but as autumn progresses, fresh oranges, grapefruit and other citrus fruits will be more available. Stocks of frozen orange juice concentrate are below last year's levels, but are offered as a "special" in some stores.

New crop apples, oranges, pears and grapes, cantaloupe and honeydew melons are available at varying prices.

As for milk and dairy foods—a year selection is a wise choice—buy according to family needs, but for real thrift, nonfat dry milk is the best buy, she advises.

Buyers Look for 'Natural'

The most convincing sales claim to put on a food or beverage label is not newness, good value, convenience, flavor or quality.

A new survey by the Ask One Omnibus Division of Consumer Response Corp., a marketing research firm, says 59 per cent of all consumers think a product labeled "natural" has positive implications; that a food or beverage is healthier, safer, and better for them. The findings are based on a representative sample of more than 1,000 people interviewed by telephone across the country.

Asked to define natural, 44 per cent described such foods and beverages as "nothing artificial." Other phrases mentioned almost as frequently: organic, 42 per cent, no chemicals, 41 per cent, pure, 41 per cent, real, 36 per cent, and no preservatives, 36 per cent.

When consumers compared foods and beverages labeled natural to similar products without that description, 43 per cent identified the natural items as "pure with nothing added."

Asked to describe purity, 14 per cent mentioned "no preservatives," 13 per cent, "no additives," 10 per cent, "nothing artificial," and 6 per cent, "no chemicals." Only 7 per cent of the respondents said natural products would "taste better or different."

Corporation President David Schwartz said 68 per cent of the respondents, particularly the better educated, listed at least one benefit. The most frequently mentioned benefit of food and beverage products labeled was that they cause no adverse side effects. About 42 per cent of consumers expressed this belief.

"We also asked about the shortcomings of natural-labeled foods and beverages," Schwartz said. "Only a small percentage mentioned ... negative reactions."

He said the most frequently mentioned shortcomings: natural products are more likely to spoil fast and cost more.

Fashion Scene

Once called pedal pushers, today's girls call them knee-knockers, and they're updated in color, fabric and styling. This classy coordinate set from Old Town is a khaki-color polyester and cottonblend with tailored vest, belted knee-knockers and complementing cowl neck pullover. Modeled by Leslie Iverson, the set features dark red and green earth tones both in the pullover and in button tabs at the knee. Available at Graves, the vest sells for $18, knee-knockers for $19, pullover for $13. (Staff Photo).

Stuffed cabbage, although not specifically served for the Sukkoth holiday, or harvest festival, is a traditional dish usually served for at least one meal during that period.

Homemade Bread Rises in Favor

By JEANNETTE BRANIN
Copley News Service

Nothing gives a homey atmosphere to a house any quicker than the smell of yeast breads baking.

Any number of women would tell, were they to be open about it, that men find the fragrance of yeast bread more alluring than imported French perfumes.

Other women would tell you that baking bread is good mental and emotional therapy. It fulfills the urge to create.

Epicures extoll the virtues of natural ingredients, and persons interested in increasing fiber in food have discovered homemade bread is the most palatable way to achieve it.

Check the label on any bread you buy at a store. If one of the ingredients reads

"nonnutritive fiber," it means the bread contains cellulose, an inert substance derived from wood. Cellulose, first cousin to sawdust, is in that bread.

Here is a standard bread recipe, with no chemicals, no emulsifiers, no "fresheners," just good B vitamins (niacin, thiamine and riboflavin) plus the mineral, iron:

BASIC WHEAT BREAD

2 cups enriched flour
2 pkgs. dry yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
¼ cup oil
¼ cup honey
1 tbsp. salt
1 egg at room temperature
4 to 4½ cups whole wheat flour
Stir together 2 cups flour and yeast. Heat milk, water, oil, honey and salt over low heat until warm (125 to 130 degrees). Add liquid ingredients to flour-yeast mixture and beat until smooth, about three minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Beat in egg. Stir in whole wheat flour to make a moderately stiff dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface, cover with bowl and let rest 10 minutes. Knead until smooth and satiny, about 5 to 10 minutes. Cover and let rest 20 minutes.

To shape loaves, divide dough in half. Roll each half into a 7x14-inch rectangle. Roll up from narrow side, pressing roll into dough at each turn. Press ends to seal and fold under loaf. Place in two greased loaf pans, 4½x8½ inches; brush with oil. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 60 to 75 minutes. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 35 to 45 minutes; cover tops with foil to prevent excess browning. Remove immediately from pans and brush with melted butter or oil.

+ + +

But let's get back to the idea that baking bread at home is fun, soul-satisfying, and rewarding in the appreciation received from family and guests. Here's an easy one to start with, an egg-rich sweet bread:

SALLY LUNN

3½ to 4 cups unsifted flour
One-third cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 pkg. active dry yeast
½ cup milk
½ cup water
½ cup margarine (1 stick)
3 eggs at room temperature
In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm, 120 to 130 degrees. Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat two minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed two minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Stir batter down and beat well, about one-half minute. Turn into a well-greased and floured nine-inch tube pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Bake at 350 degrees about 45 to 50 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Best when served warm.

There's a funny story about the origin of Anadama bread. It is said that a Gloucester fisherman had a lazy wife, Anna, who refused to bake bread. In exasperation he mixed up a concoction of his own, and, as he stirred and kneaded, his family heard him muttering, "Anna, damn her."

ANADAMA BREAD

7 to 8 cups unsifted flour
1¼ cups yellow cornmeal
½ tsp. salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast

Food Requirements Vary

By SHIRLEY
BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Humans are highly individualized, not only in appearance, temperament and intellect, but also in their nutritional needs, making it difficult to formulate dietary guidelines that apply to everyone.

The dependency upon foods for energy and nutrients is universal, but individual specific needs change as life progresses. A variety of factors influence nutritional requirements and these include environment, the state of health or the presence of disease, degeneration of organs and tissues, activity levels, and the food absorption rate.

Eating patterns established in early childhood very often continue throughout life and this results in one of the major causes of overweight during adulthood.

Too often people accept "middle-age spread" as an inevitable fact of life. This implies that fat will accumulate automatically without any cause other than advancing years. This, of course, is sheer nonsense.

The undeniable reason for this additional weight is that the diet remains constant in kinds and quantities while the activity level is decreased, requiring fewer calories. The excessive calories are stored as fat.

Those who remain aware of their diet intake and nutritional needs can adjust their eating patterns and avoid a weight gain in later years. Overweight in the middle aged and older can predispose the body to the possibility of diabetes, heart disease, circulatory problems, high blood pressure and kidney disease.

This does not mean you can't enjoy your favorite foods, but it does require a conscious effort to control quantities. Reducing quantities by one-third will not be a hardship, but can be a source of satisfaction as your mirror reflects improved appearance and your energy demonstrates improved health.

Individual biochemical needs of human beings vary considerably in nutritional requirements. The RDA, or Recommended Dietary Allowances, gives figures that cover 95 per cent of the healthy American population. It should be noted that the "D" in RDA does not stand for "Daily" as some food manufacturers list on labels, but for "Dietary" since some vitamins are cumulative and are not needed every day.

Dear Shirley:

What do you think of face creams that have vitamins added to them? Are they as good for the outside of the body as the inside?

Miss K. L.

Vitamins to do you any good must be ingested. Incidentally, putting vitamins into you with the proper foods will help the outside too.

Dear Shirley:

I have a low thyroid and my doctor has prescribed for it. I am 35 pounds overweight. Will thyroid medication help me lose weight?

Mrs. L. M.

Thyroid medication is only replacing a hormone that is normally secreted by your body. You will require a change in your eating habits to lose weight.

Questions may be sent to Shirley Bright Boody, Eat Yourself Slim, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

The growing popularity of bread baking at home can be attested to by Toni Griffin, who judged hundreds of breads at the recent Southern California Exposition at Del Mar. A student of pastries at Cordon Bleu de Paris and a holder of a certificate from La Varenne, Toni is a serious cook and teacher.

Affluent Families Often Multi-Earners

Most affluent U.S. families depend on at least two wage earners, reports Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

According to the American Council of Life Insurance, four out of five American families in the richest fifth of the population have two or more wage earners in the household, the specialist says.

Usually, the two who work are husband and wife, although in some of these families employed children also supplement the family income.

Within the past half-century the proportion of married women who work rose from about 29 to 44 percent. Today, with nearly 37 million women in the work force, over 60 percent of whom are married, the double-salary life style has not only created a "population explosion" in the middle-and upper-income.

Since so many women now share financial responsibilities with their husbands, the disability or death of a working wife is likely to lower drastically the family's level of living.

Nectarine Linzer Torte

"Nectarine Linzer Torte" starts with the tradition of European culinary elegance and adds a taste of America in the form of tart-sweet fresh California nectarines. It's a delicate torte pastry covered with a layer of sweet almond paste then topped with cinnamon-lemon spiced nectarines and a lattice-work of the torte pastry. Serve this Old World dessert for special guests or whenever you want to conclude your meal with a truly grande finale.

Nectarine Linzer Torte

- | | | |
|------------------------------------|-----|----------------------|
| Torte Pastry | 1/4 | teaspoon cinnamon |
| Almond Paste Layer | 1 | teaspoon lemon juice |
| 5 to 8 fresh California nectarines | 1/2 | teaspoon cornstarch |
| 1/2 cup sugar | 1 | teaspoon water |

Prepare pastry. Reserve 1/3 of pastry for lattice top. Press remainder evenly over bottom and 1-1/2 inches up sides of a 9-inch spring form pan to form crust. Roll reserved dough about 3/8 inches thick; cut in 1/2 inch wide strips. Prepare Almond Paste Layer and carefully spread over bottom of crust. Slice nectarines to make 5 cups. Turn into a large skillet with sugar, cinnamon and lemon juice. Stir over low heat until juice begins to form. Cover and cook gently, 5 minutes. Remove fruit with slotted spoon. Blend cornstarch with water and stir into remaining liquid. Boil rapidly until thickened and reduce to about 1/3 cup. Pour over nectarines and turn into pastry lined pan. Arrange pastry strips lattice fashion, over top. Bake at 350 degrees F. for about 1 hour 10 minutes until crust is golden brown. Cool before cutting. Makes one 9-inch torte.

Torte Pastry: Resift 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour with 1/3 cup sugar into mixing bowl. Cut in 3/4 cup butter. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons cold milk; mix until dough forms a ball.

Almond Paste Layer: Blend 1 can (8-ounces) almond paste with 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1 unbeaten egg white until smooth.

Most Parents Tend To Follow Tradition

Most parents follow tradition. A recent national study shows that "traditional parenting," as opposed to "contemporary parenting," is the pattern of 57 per cent of the group studied.

The survey covered only the under-35 group in which both parents work and have an income of over $20,000, with the husband employed at professional or managerial level.

Traditional parents tend to perpetuate the values they learned as children. They are strict disciplinarians and demanding of their children.

Marriage is regarded as an institution, with emphasis placed on religion, saving money, hard work and financial security.

In contrast to contemporary parents, traditional parents are willing to make material sacrifices so their children can have "the best." They want boys to be better at sports than girls, and they clearly define what is masculine and what is feminine.

Almost half of the traditional parents agree that "A Man Should Provide," and in discipline, they are strict or middle-of-the-road.

Understand Heat Loss

To save home energy, understand heat loss and gain, says Mrs. Jean Carlton, county extension agent.

Transmission is the amount of heat absorbed or gained on surfaces of the house—such as walls, roof, floors and windows.

Building contractors and dealers have extensive rating tables which show the amount of heat gained and lost by transmission for various kinds of building materials.

Heat gain and loss by air infiltration is caused by air leakage through cracks and crevices. Infiltration causes from one quarter to one third of the total heat loss in a typical home.

Differences in outdoor and indoor temperatures can cause infiltration.

When it's hot outside and cool inside, hot air leaks in. This requires air conditioners to operate more often.

Hot air in summer also brings in moisture, which causes the air conditioner to run more frequently, trying to wring out the moisture.

Heat gain in summer and loss in winter can be reduced by caulking, weatherstripping and landscaping and by having a light colored roof and exterior, Mrs. Jean Carlton says.

Fireplaces Need Early Attention

Chimneys and fireplaces need early fall attention, says Mrs. Jean Carlton, County Extension agent. Inspect now to help prevent winter problems.

If the chimney top is accessible, look down it with the aid of a flashlight, or reflect sunlight down into it with a mirror--or use mirror and flashlight from the fireplace, or from the clean-out at the chimney base.

Chimney Cleaning -- is seldom necessary unless thick deposits of soot are present. The chimney can be vacuumed by a commercial firm or homeowners can do it themselves, says the agent.

First, close fireplace damper and seal opening to keep soot out of the room.

If there is not too great an offset in the chimney, dislodge soot with a weighted bag filled with straw, paper or cloth--and tied with nylon rope. Lower the bag into the chimney and move it up and down until dirt and soot are forced down the flue.

Checking for Defects -- Inspect for cracks in flue lining and for leaks around other connection.

If fireplace and chimney show deterioration, try the smoke test -- to locate possible leaks. Build a fire in the fireplace. When it is burning well, put paper or damp straw into the fire to create profuse smoke.

Cover chimney with heavy cloth to force smoke out through any deteriorated mortar joints or other areas. Open windows and doors for smoke to escape.

Normally, the smoke would be drawn up past the joints in the flue lining, but this test will force it through these joints IF there are leaks. Smoke will also leak through any cracks in chimney stack joints.

Repairing Defects -- If there are only a few small leaks, repair the brickwork joints.

Minor crumbling of the mortar should be repaired to prevent water penetration. Clean out at least one-half inch of the mortar and loose dust. Dampen joints and fill with new mortar.

Consult a chimney expert if there are many leaks in the stack, or if they are large. NEVER use a chimney until all defects are corrected, the agent warns.

Inspecting Flashing -- Flashing joints -- on the flashing around the chimney -- are usually sealed with roofing cement, and after many years of weathering there may be small breaks in the cement. If so, repair with asphalt roof paint or roofing cement. Fill larger gaps with roof felt and cover with cement.

Occasionally chimney flashing separates from the mortar it is imbedded in. Repair this immediately, since separated flashing acts as a scoop for any rainwater.

Repairing Flashing -- To repair separated flashing: remove old mortar along the break line, clean the channel, and reposition the flashing.

STRETCHING YOUR DOLLARS

BY DR. W. L. DORRIES

Professor of Economics Finance East Texas State University

For the young people who are trying to choose a career, let me explain some of the possibilities in the banking industry. Broadly speaking, finance includes about 36,000 commercial banks (including branches), investment bankers who concern themselves with buying and selling large issues of corporation stocks and bonds, and about 5,000 savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks. Insurance companies are also financial institutions.

Bank work is highly specialized. To enter this type of work, you should enjoy working with numbers and be able to perform detailed work.

Banks employ clerks, tellers and officers. Many women and blacks are being employed as bank officers. A college degree is usually not required to be a clerk or teller, but experience using various types of office machines is helpful.

In a small bank, one clerk may do several jobs, such as sorting checks, totaling debit and credit slips, and preparing monthly statements for depositors.

A college degree and several years' experience is usually required to become a bank officer. Courses in finance, accounting, economics, marketing and computer science are needed because officers need a broad knowledge of business activities.

Banks and savings and loan associations are aggressively recruiting good prospects and paying higher salaries than ever before. Starting salaries for graduates with a bachelors degree now average about $12,000 per year while those with graduate degrees are receiving about $18,000 per year.

Employment in the finance, insurance, and real estate industry is expected to increase faster than the average for all industries through the mid-1980's. Jobs also will be created as banks continue to expand services such as bank charge cards and the handling of accounts for retail stores

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

New cure for cat odors

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — My cat wet on my rug and I cannot get rid of the odor even though I have used a disinfectant in water and pine scented ammonia. After anything dries the odor is still there. —PAULINE.

DEAR PAULINE — Perhaps Mrs. E.P.'s letter will be of help to you.

DEAR POLLY — I use the same method getting rid of cat odors that my mother used many years ago. I put a small rag in a frying pan and set it on fire. This is not dangerous if used carefully and it removed the odor completely. Keep a lid for the pan in your other hand so as to smother the fire if necessary. I do not think sprays for the air will remove cat odors. —MRS. E.P. (Polly's note: Do not set the pan on your carpet but hold it in your hand near the places that have the odor and follow directions for holding the lid so as to have it ready if needed.)

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with recipes that say eight tablespoons of butter or whatever instead of one-half cup, and three teaspoons instead of one tablespoon, which is the same. That is making us do it the hard way. —LOIS.

DEAR POLLY — To keep your pictures hanging straight, wrap masking tape, wrong side out, around the middle of a rounded toothpick and put at the bottom near the corners of the back of the picture and it will always hang straight.

An old metal shoe rack can be nailed to the garage door or wall to make a great holder for garden tools.

When one does not have drawer space for storing extra pillows hang them on pants hangers in a closet.

An old broom with frayed and spreading bristles can be renewed by soaking the bristles in water for a few minutes and then putting a strong rubber band around the bristles just below the stitching. When bristles are dry remove the rubber band. —NORA.

DEAR POLLY — I have several recipes I use often that call for grated cheese, so I buy cheese in large quantities. I grate the cheese with my salad maker and put salad oil on the grater so the cheese does not stick. I measure the grated cheese into the amounts most often used, put in plastic bags and mark on each the amount of cheese it contains. It is all grated and does not take long to thaw when I remove the required amount from the freezer. I have no waste because of moldy cheese and am saved the time and trouble of grating cheese every time it is needed. —MRS. R.L.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

For Thursday, Sept. 22, 1977

Your Birthday

Sep. 22, 1977

Situations that you will personally control develop as you want them to this coming year. Under no conditions should you leave important decisions to subordinates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could be a red letter day for you materially. Everything is keyed to something you're presently working for, not a new venture. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The attention is centered on you socially today. It's not that you'll try to dominate the scene, but others will push you into the limelight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to bear in mind today that you carry a little more weight than your opponents. There's no force stronger than the power within that makes you a winner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, revitalize a friendship that can stand you in good stead for your own personal gratification. This is where your treasure lies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you will function best in situations from which you can gain. This doesn't imply you're being selfish. It's only logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 19-Feb. 19) Look at life philosophically today and you'll be a winner with very little effort; if not, I'd be apprehensive about the final results.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others want to do favors for you today and accomplish things to make you happy. Don't be patronizing. This would inhibit their efforts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If at all possible today, get together with those with whom you'd like to firm up a business relationship. Much can be accomplished.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conditions favor talking to people today who can do things for your work or career. Deal directly with them. Good things will happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Follow your nobler instincts and give unstintingly of your time and substance to others today. Returns will be far greater than the outlay.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something important in your life is presently undergoing a radical transformation. Don't be fretful. It will prove to be for the better.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Wherever you go today, you bring sunshine and harmony. You are the moderating influence that brings others to the negotiating table.

Save that empty 16-ounce can after you've removed the contents of stewed tomatoes. The empty can is the mold. Economical and easy to prepare. Budget Tomato-Relish Mold combines stewed tomatoes, lemon or strawberry flavor gelatin, salt, and vinegar in a tasty side salad to enhance any meal.

Empty Cans Reusable

Cans Make Handy Salad Molds

Opinions on food packaging vary from highly complimentary to highly critical. There is agreement, however, about the variety of ways well-designed containers can be used and reused long after the original contents have been enjoyed.

Take the case of an empty 16-ounce can of stewed tomatoes. Once the contents are removed, the can goes into service as a mold for quick Budget Tomato-Relish Mold. It's an economical, easy-to-make side salad that will enhance the simplest meal, whether for family or company. The stewed tomatoes are combined with a 3-ounce package of either lemon flavor or strawberry flavor gelatin, plus salt and vinegar. Remember to save the can! After the mixture has simmered for two minutes, pour it into the can and chill until firm. Dip in warm water then puncture the bottom of the can, and unmold. Serve on a bed of leafy green lettuce and watch 6 servings disappear.

Microwaves Misunderstood

New Cooking Method Surrounded by Myths

The microwave oven is creating a lot of excitement these days...not only for its cool, clean and speedy cooking abilities, but also because of its energy-saving potential. Homemakers who have experienced microwave cooking are usually this appliance's best sales people. For some who are not yet familiar with this new cooking concept, there may be a feeling of mystery surrounding just what it does, and how it does it.

Here is some basic information provided by home economists to help answer questions you might have about microwave cooking:

Microwaves are waves of energy. If a stone is thrown into a pond, you'll see waves spread out where the stone hit the water. You can't see microwaves spread, but like TV and radio waves, you can observe the effect. Food comes out of the microwave oven cooked and hot.

Three important characteristics of microwaves are: 1) They are "reflected" off metals, without producing any heat. 2) They are "transmitted" through most glass, paper and plastic, without heating these materials. 3) They are "absorbed" by food and cause certain molecules in the food to begin rapidly rotating. As they rotate, the molecules rub against each other, friction results, and heat is produced.

If you have ever rubbed your hands together on a cold day to keep them warm, you've used the same principle - friction. In microwave cooking, the molecules rotate and rub against each other 2,450 million times per second. This friction results in heat produced almost instantly in food.

You may wonder why the same amounts of different foods have different cooking times. Whirlpool home economists advise that the primary food molecules which react to microwaves are water, fat and sugar. They react differently, so cooking times will vary depending on the amounts and proportions of these elements.

A common microwave myth is that microwaves cook from the inside out. This is not true. In both conventional cooking and microwave cooking, the heating occurs first on the surface of the food and then is slowly conducted toward the center.

Compare how food is heated conventionally and how it is heated in a microwave oven. On top of the range, the surface element is heated first, then the utensil and finally the food. In a conventional oven, the air in the oven cavity heats first, then the walls, rack and finally the food. In microwave cooking, only the food is heated. That's why microwave cooking is called "cool" cooking. The difference is that in microwave cooking the heat is immediately produced "deeper" inside the food. Because of this ability to produce heat immediately farther within the food (generally within a range of 3/4 to 2 inches) cooking occurs faster than it does conventionally.

Density is a factor that influences how deep a microwave can penetrate food. They penetrate deeper into "less dense" foods like bread than into "more dense" foods like meat. Because the microwaves lose power as they go deeper into the food, many recipes suggest forming food into a "doughnut" shape, or putting a custard cup or glass in the center of a round casserole. This shape has no corners or centers, so cooking can take place all around - through the top, sides and center.

Home economists suggest that you keep the "density factor" in mind when reheating foods, too. Placing food so that the denser portion is toward the outside of the dish will result in more even cooking. "Learning to cook with a microwave oven to take advantage of its full potential does take a little practice," they say. "But, the advantages it offers in the savings of time and energy far outweigh the effort expended."

Fashion's Mood Soft Gathers

Gathers Not Difficult for Home Seamstress

Fashion's mood is soft gathers. Styles are soft blouses, dirndl skirts, ruffled trims or dresses that hand gently from the shoulder. Fabrics are featherweight knits, challis, crepe de chine or flannel.

But gathers are the major structural detail. These tips will help make gathering easier and attractive:

-For even and small folds, use a stitch that is only as long as necessary. Woven or knitted fabrics that are thick and closely constructed usually need longer stitches than do woven or knitted fabrics that are lightweight and loosely constructed.

-When gathering heavy or bulky fabrics, stitch to each seamline, start & stop again on the other side of the seam. Push seam allowances to the opposite side so that the gathering stitches can go all the way to the seamline.

-To gather a long area, divide into several sections that can be drawn separately.

-Before drawing up the gathers, pin the matching notches or seamlines together. Draw the gathering threads to fit the area. Distribute the fullness evenly.

To gather with a straight stitch, first slightly loosen the upper tension so bobbin thread will draw easier. Use heavy duty bobbin thread such as silk or nylon to minimize breakage.

Run two rows of stitching for better control and evenness. Stitch from the right side.

If ripped stitches leave their marks in the fabric, stitch along the seamline and again 1/4" within the seam allowance. If ripped stitches don't show, consider making each row of stitches 1/4" on each side of the seamline.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like your advice on how to lose fat in specific areas. I'm 15 years old, 5 feet 2, and weigh 114. The fat accumulates on the inside of my knees, thighs and hips. I exercise, but I'm losing everywhere but there.

When I lose weight I lose it in my waist. When I gain, it's noticeable in my knees. Please send me a diet or some exercises that will help, especially my knees.

DEAR READER — There is a persistent but completely wrong idea that exercises will reduce a specific area — "spot reducing." It just isn't so.

When you lose fat you lose it all over and when you gain you gain all over. Why then do you have fat knees? Because some people have more fat cells to begin with in certain body locations. It is often a familial characteristic. We see the same thing in different breeds of animals.

So you grew up with a different body plan than some others. The only way you can eliminate excess fat from your knees, thighs, and hips is to have a general weight loss and these may be the last areas to lose fat stores in your case. Exercising your legs will not help other than increasing the use of calories. You can increase or decrease the size of an arm or leg by changes in muscle size but the loss of fat is in response to the total body metabolism.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you can use for a plan and you should accompany it with regular exercise, walking, swimming, dancing, whatever you enjoy.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a chest X ray recently which showed calcium in my aorta. What causes it and what can I do about it to keep it from getting worse? Could this cause a heart attack?

DEAR READER — The aorta is that large artery that carries oxygenated blood away from your left heart to most of your body. Branches off the aorta go to the brain, abdominal organs, arms and legs and wherever oxygenated blood is needed. It is a very large artery and in young people is very elastic. It expands each time the left heart pumps blood into it with each heartbeat. The elasticity enables it to literally beat with each pulsation.

As you get older the wall of the aorta tends to calcify and loses its elasticity.

Often a person lives out his or her life span without this being a significant problem. Sometimes, if it becomes extensive it may cause the top blood pressure reading (systolic) to be higher than in young people. The higher levels will increase the chances of having a stroke or a heart attack.

I wouldn't be unduly alarmed about the finding but I do think you would be wise to keep your weight down, eat a diet low in fat, particularly saturated fat and cholesterol. Don't smoke cigarettes if you happen to do so.

ACT Protesting TV Cereal Commercial

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A public interest group has told the government it thinks TV commercials for a new cookieshaped cereal should be banned, on the grounds that children will grow up thinking cookies are a good thing to eat for breakfast. Action for Children's Television filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission asking that Ralston Purina be banned from showing the commercials in question for Cookie Crisp, a pre-sweetened cereal.

The commercials depict a cartoon character, Cookie Jarvis, who "transforms" children's cereal bowls into cookie jars," the group said. "The child in the advertisement states that the cereal 'looks like little chocolate chip cookies to me.'"

The cartoon character adds that the cereal is "shaped like little cookies from a cookie jar," and "tastes like sweet crunchy cookies," the group added. ACT President Peggy Charren said:

"It is incredible that a major manufacturer has to resort repeatedly to manipulative tactics directed to children in order to stay in business."

The group told the FTC it believes the commercials are unfair and deceptive because they are "designed to intentionally confuse the child as to the nature of the product by implying that the cereal is actually composed of small cookies."

ACT said the ads create for the child "the net impression that it is nutritionally desirable to consume cookies for breakfast."

We contacted a spokesman for the manufacturer, who said the company had not yet received a copy of the complaint. He added:

"Ralston Purina is in no way advocating the consumption of cookies at breakfast by the introduction of Cookie Crisp cereal... television commercials emphasize that the product is a vitamin-fortified, ready-to-eat cereal, to be consumed as part of a complete breakfast. This message is stressed in both the visual and audio elements of the television commercials. Further, Ralston Purina is one of only two ready-to-eat cereal manufacturers that reveals sugar and carbohydrate information on the labeling of its cereal products."

An estimated 400,000 Americans belong to food co-ops, including Vice President Walter Mondale's family.

A new edition has just been published of a directory listing about 2,500 such co-ops in the United States and Canada. "The Food Co-op Directory" can be obtained for $1.50 per copy for individuals and nonprofit groups, $3 per copy for businesses, institutions and government agencies from Food Co-op Directory, 106 Girard SE, Albuquerque, N.M. 87106.

The non-profit group that publishes the directory says more co-ops are forming every year because members can sometimes save up to 30 per cent on their food bills. It says the directory will help you find a co-op to join.

Most divorced persons will remarry, says Debby Johnson, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. About 3/4 of the women and 5-6 of the men remarry within three years, the specialist reports.

Vegetables Au Parmesan and Goldfish Macaroni and Cheese Casserole are vegetable dishes that can be served as a main course.

Simple Additions Turn Old Favorites to New

We live in a time of individuality and versatility. The traditional decorating and entertaining codes of the fifties and sixties have given way to the creative and innovative ideas of the seventies. This attitude is as evident in food preparation as it is in housing and clothing styles. In entertaining, for example, brunches have replaced cocktail and late evening parties and feature menus that offer exciting and distinctively new eating experiences.

Vegetable cookery, for one, has come a long way from the simple "boil in salted water direction." In Vegetable Au Parmesan broccoli and carrots take on a whole new flavor when simmered slowly in a little chicken bouillon and spiced with dry mustard and ground ginger. For still more variety and taste appeal parmesan goldfish crackers are added just before serving.

Also a Macaroni and Cheese casserole can take on new character and appeal with a few simple additions. Start with green pepper sauted with onion in butter; then add stewed tomatoes along with the pasta and Cheddar cheese. This mixture layered alternately with pizza goldfish crackers and garnished with tomato slices gives an old favorite a new look as well as a savory new taste.

VEGETABLES AU PARMESAN

- 1 bunch broccoli
- 2 cups carrots, sliced
- 1 cup chicken bouillon
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 cup Parmesan Goldfish crackers

In a saucepan simmer broccoli and carrots in a cup of chicken bouillon until tender crisp. Add butter, dry mustard and ginger. Mix in thoroughly. Just before serving, mix in 3/4 cup Pepperidge Farm Goldfish crackers. Top with remaining 1/4 cup. Makes 6 servings.

GOLDFISH MACARONI AND CHEESE

- 1 small onion, sliced
- one-third cup green pepper, chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 4 cups cooked elbow macaroni
- 1 can (1 pound) stewed tomatoes
- 2 cups Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 1 package pizza goldfish crackers
- 1 tomato, sliced

Cook onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Add cooked macaroni, stewed tomatoes and 1/2 cups Cheddar cheese. In a buttered 1 1/2 quart casserole, alternate layers of pasta mixture and goldfish, ending with goldfish. Top with remaining 1/2 cup cheese and arrange tomato slices on top. Bake for 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Makes 6 servings.

New Styles in for Queen, Half Sizes

Queen size and half size figures, take note: some ready-to-wear manufacturers and pattern companies are realizing that half size and large size consumers of all ages follow fashion trends and want updated styling in sizes that fit.

For half size and queen size teenagers and young women, junior styling is now more available.

Bigger bones, longer waisted, larger bust and broader shouldered figures can now find clothes proportioned to fit, in more appealing and fashionable styles, but prices may be a bit higher.

For larger figures in the younger set, popular designs are appearing in T-shirts, jeans, sundresses, jumpers and jogging suits.

Favorites in queen size separates include short sleeve or sleeveless tops, zipped or buttoned fronts, open necklines, gored skirts and pull-on pants. For the fall, ready-to-wear promises party pants, sweater knits, peasant necklines, sueded and jumpers.

Stockings and pantyhose are available in queen sizes, but lingerie selection is limited.

For the half size figure, style lines and proportions must be shorter-waisted and fuller than for the missy figure. Bust and shoulder shaping is important. Princess lines compliment this figure.

Locate shops which carry designs for your size and body build. Learn brand names and manufacturer's size terminology—such as stout or queen size.

Homesewers may select fashionable patterns from women's and half sizes. Look for styles designed to slenderize.

Men Found Lacking in Sex Knowledge

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — The days of locker room sex education are over, but Planned Parenthood says men still lack sufficient knowledge about sexuality and birth control methods. Because of the current "epidemic" of unwanted teenage pregnancies, the Planned Parenthood branch in suburban Bergen County has decided it is time to educate men about sex. "We're finding that men of all ages lack education about sexuality and birth control. Whether they are 35 or 15, often the only difference is their lack of (sexual) experience," said Meredith Bernstein, director of Planned Parenthood's Male Reproductive Health Clinic. To erase the old wives' tales often leading to unwanted pregnancies, the group opened a men's clinic this month. The clinic is one of only four in the country sponsored by Planned Parenthood, an organization which has traditionally provided birth control and related counseling to women. Last year, the Bergen County facility gave 953 pregnancy tests to women between the ages of 13 and

19. The tests found 601 of them were pregnant and, the clinic understands, 444 of those teenagers had abortions. "Realizing that men have something to do with women becoming pregnant, we thought it was about time that men became involved in birth control," said Ms. Bernstein. The clinic is setting up a series of educational rap groups for men who want to learn about male and female anatomy. It is also writing self-help literature for men. In addition, a urologist and a fertility doctor will be available for male patients, and the clinic will provide a full range of bilingual health and information services including referral for vasectomies. "People seem to have some ideas about birth control, but there are lots of holes in that knowledge," said Ms. Bernstein. "Sometimes that can mean the difference between a wanted and an unwanted pregnancy." Ms. Bernstein said patients often have erroneous information about birth control, including: — One woman who sprayed contraceptive foam on her morning cereal and ate it for birth control. — Another woman who believed she could not get pregnant if she had sexual intercourse standing up. — Men who believe they will lose their sex drive if they have a vasectomy. Patients who believe sexual intercourse during menstruation prevents pregnancy. Ms. Bernstein said secondary school sex education classes often come too late for a teenage population that is becoming sexually active at a younger age. "There is increasing pressure for younger and younger people to have sex," she said. "Advertising sends out messages about sex and sex appeal. But no one talks about sexual responsibility and values. "Ideally, we should learn about our bodies the same way we learn math and reading — from an early age." Men in Bergen County have been receptive to the clinic. For many, it is the first time they have known of a place to go for information.
